HERRIDGE

VANCOUVER (CP)—The provincial secretary of the New Democratic Party said today that a member of Parliament and a member of the British Columbia legislature have been reprimanded for "allowing themselves to be used by Communist or Communist-front organizations."

Ernest Hall confirmed a report by the Trail Times that letters had been written to H. W. (Bert) Herridge, Kootenay West MP, and Cedric Cox, MLA for Burnaby, criticizing their attendance at a May Day rally in Vancouver and urging:

"... that you exercise a greater degree of self-discipline in such matters so as to obviate further complaints of this nature being received."

10,000 Demonstrators Demand Nehru Resign

Price of Food Issue in India

By PETER JACKSON

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — About 10,000 opposition party supporters swarmed to the main gate of Parliament here today demanding the resignation of Prime Minister Nehru and protesting against the high price of food.

The demonstration came a day after all opposition parties except the Communists succeeded in introducing a motion of no confidence against the government — unprecedented in Nehru's administration.

While the anti-Nehru demonstrators were at the main gate, a group of 7,000 supporters of the ruling Congress Party were outside another gate, shouting slogans backing their leader.

Police closed both iron gates and stood guard with lathis—metal-tipped wooden staves.

DISTRIBUTE LETTER

The opposition demonstrators, who claimed to represent 60 per cent of the people of India, handed out copies of an "open letter" to Nehru, accusing his government of corruption and inefficiency and ending with the demand: "Quit, Nehru, quit."

The no confidence motion Tuesday was the first the government has faced in 16 years in office. It will be discussed in Parliament next week.

Observers said the motion, which gave no reason for the censure because the various parties supporting it have different motives for their action, has no chance of passing because of the overwhelming majority held by Nehru's Congress Party.

But they saw the motion as being a gauge of rising opposition strength and unity.

Agreement Before Cabinet

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Pearson today indicated his cabinet was nearing approval of a general agreement with the United States covering provision of nuclear weapons to Canadian forces.

As he entered a cabinet meeting Mr. Pearson told newsmen detailed clause-by-clause study of the draft agreement was to be proceeded with.

If it was not completed today, he said, it would be proceeded with Thursday. In the event any changes were felt to be necessary, Mr. Pearson added, discussions would be held with U.S. authorities.

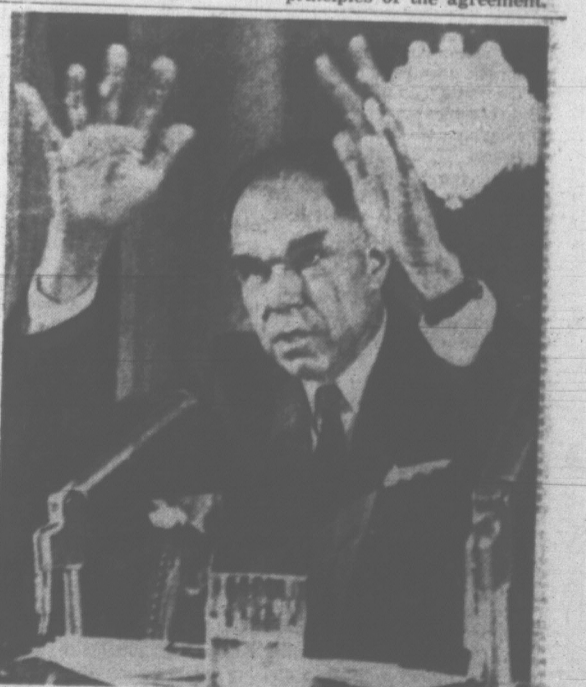

Mr. Pearson said he expected the cabinet would give approval in principle to the agreement, take up consideration of specific details, and then deal with any "verbal changes" which would require Canada to consult with the U.S. But, he added, he didn't anticipate any departure from the basic principles of the agreement.

Public Denied Parley Report

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lawyers have clamped a news blackout on the talks aimed at an out-of-court settlement of the dispute over status of the British Columbia Electric Company.

Douglas McK. Brown, counsel for the B.C. Power Corporation, and C. W. Brazier, counsel for the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, both said today there will be no announcement until the negotiations are completed.

The talks, which started Monday, were continuing following an indefinite adjournment Tuesday of Supreme Court proceedings before Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, testified today that underground testing will permit a "wide range" of nuclear weapons development, including warheads for anti-missile defence.

As the third witness at Senate hearings, Seaborg strongly backed earlier testimony from State Secretary Dean Rusk and

LOOT FIGURE DISPUTED BY 'CHARLIE'

LONDON (Reuters) — A newspaper today printed a letter, seemingly from a member of the gang which staged Britain's £2,500,000 ($7,500,000) train robbery, disputing the official figure of losses given in the theft.

"We really must protest at the dishonesty of high officials," the letter says. "Somebody is claiming over £2,600,000 ($7,800,000) from insurance companies."

"For your information and for anybody also interested, the total gained from this exercise was exactly £2,095,325 ($6,285,975) and a sprained ankle."

The letter, signed Charlie was mailed in the Lambeth area near central London Tuesday.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Oakalla prisoner David Crneć, 29, hacked through the ceiling of a cell at the Burnaby prison and lowered himself to freedom with a bedsheet rope early today. Prisoner John Barber, 28, was caught by guards moments after he lowered himself down the same rope.

1,200 Cubans Seek to Beat U.S. Blockade

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters) — A mystery ship which plans to pick up 1,200 Cuban refugees in the next two days for attempted transport to the United States has turned back to a Jamaican port, a lawyer for the sponsor of the project said today.

Contrary to earlier reports, the lawyer said, there are no Cubans on the ship at present.

The sailing, ostensibly organized to break what was called an American ban on entry of Cuban refugees was organized by British-born Harry Derber in defiance of U.S. state department warnings.

But Derber's lawyer, John Nageley, said the ship returned because of "certain communications I received."

POSITION SECRET

He said he could not disclose the ship's whereabouts but added that it will pick up 1,200 Cubans in the next two days. The Cubans presumably are still in Cuba.

If Derber goes ahead with his plans to get the Cubans into the U.S., it will follow an unsuccessful attempt last month to fly refugees out of Cuba via Britain's Grand Cayman Island, 200 miles north-west of Jamaica.

Since then, the U.S. has alleged agents were leaving Cuba for other Latin American countries on flights that landed at Grand Cayman and has requested Britain to deny landing rights to flights carrying "potential subversive agents."

Score Golf Wins

SAINT JOHN, N.B. — Bill Wakeham of Victoria and Vancouver's Bert Ticehurst posted victories this morning in the first round of the Canadian Amateur golf tournament.

Wakeham defeated Brian McGuigan, Montreal, 4 and 2; and Ticehurst, the tournament medalist, downed Peter Hope, Dartmouth, N.S., 3 and 2.

Jobless Ranks Thinning

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Canada fell to 293,000 in mid-July, a drop of 11,000 from the June figure and 15,000 under the total for July, 1962, the federal labor department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The joint press release noted that the heavy summer influx of students into the labor force, which was evident in June, continued in July.

The unemployment rate for July was 4.2 per cent of the labor force compared with 4.5 per cent a year earlier and 5.2 per cent two years ago. In June, the rate was 4.4 per cent. The jobless rate is the number of unemployed as a percentage of the labor force.

Employment rose between June and July by an estimated 207,000 to 6,742,000, an "above-average increase for this time of year," the report said.

At the same time, there was a large increase of 196,000 in the total manpower count to 7,035,000. Against these increases, unemployment showed its slight decline.

The DBS-labor department release said the labor force expansion between June and July was characterized by "a very large influx of students."

During the month, an estimated 199,000 teen-agers between 14 and 19 years of age entered the labor force and an equally large number got jobs.

The total entry of teen-agers into the labor force during the two months from May to July amounted to 312,000. This compares with 268,000 during the corresponding period last year and 214,000 in 1961.

Of the 293,000 jobless workers in July, 201,000 had been unemployed for three months or less. An estimated 33,000 had been seeking work from four to six months and 59,000 for seven months or more.

The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate was estimated at 6 per cent, unchanged from June but down slightly from the 6.4 per cent rate of July, 1962. The report includes a cautionary note about the reliability of the seasonally adjusted rate because of guesswork involved in its calculation.

Unemployment rates in the Atlantic, Quebec and British Columbia regions were higher than the national 4.2 per cent average, while in Ontario and the Prairies the rates were lower.

Jobless rate for July in B.C. was 5.5 per cent, compared with 5.1 per cent a year ago.

Hideout Gives Several Clues In Train Case

LONDON (AP)—British police investigating the great mail train robbery followed up a new avenue of leads today uncovered by the discovery of a lonely farm that was the gang's hideout.

Scotland Yard had:

1. The name and address of a man to whom the farm was sold less than a month ago.
2. A description of a charming, expensively dressed man who came to collect the keys.
3. Descriptions of a ginger-headed stranger and a brunet woman seen in the district by suspicious country folk.

Although the police appeared to be making progress, there was still no trace of the loot of more than £2,500,000 ($7,500,000) snatched from the Glasgow-London night mail train last Thursday.

An unconfirmed report said an underworld source had furnished the names of 10 criminals supposedly to have taken part in the raid.

FOUNDERS OF COMMUNISM, PSYCHIATRY PLAYED ROLES

'Christians Can Claim No Monopoly on God'

By CARL MOLLINS

TORONTO (CP) — A leading British churchman told the Anglican World Congress today the atheistic founder of communism and the unbelieving father of psychoanalysis have strong claims to godliness.

Canon Max Warren, general secretary of the Church Missionary Society in England, said Christians can claim no monopoly on God because his righteousness works through other faiths and even atheistic more sympathetic understanding among Anglicans for other ideologies and science.

He suggested to 1,000 Anglican churchmen at the first working session of their 11-day meeting that Christian concern for social righteousness "owes not a little, under God, to the stimulus of Karl Marx."

MARX

... provided stimulus

Christians conscious of the contribution of psychoanalysis to the healing of spirits "will humbly thank God for his grace at work in Sigmund Freud, no less at work because Freud did not acknowledge him."

Canon Warren, launching discussion on how the church can best confront rival faiths and ideas, suggested that since religion is a quest for understanding of life then a medium that increases understanding serves religion. He described such contributions as "Godly irreligion."

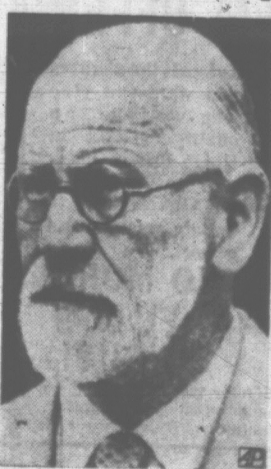

MAY DENY REALITY

"The great role of science is to make men more religious because it is forever increasing our knowledge of the universe." The trouble with religion, he added, is that it is in danger of denying reality by building on mystery.

"Science has no brief to tell religion the meaning of life and love. Religion, for its part, has no right to tell science what its knowledge."

"But science and religion together may some day have something very important to say to technology—a word as to how things are done and what should, not be done."

Canon Warren warned there is danger in the very theme of the current congress — the church's mission on the "frontiers" of religion, politics and culture—because it tends to divide life into religious and secular compartments when such divisions should not exist if the church is to survive.

ties" of religion, politics and culture—because it tends to divide life into religious and secular compartments when such divisions should not exist if the church is to survive.

An apparent failure to believe in Christianity often is just "a refusal to accept the distortions of our own believing," he said. A major source of such distortion is the failure of the church to speak to modern man in his own language.

Referring to the fact that religious jargon sometimes creates "a God that is dead," Canon Warren commended as a "deeply sincere and profoundly courageous" attempt to find a fresh language a controversial book entitled Honest to God by Bishop John Robinson of Woolwich, England. ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

Remember the navy jape which might well have been titled "somebody stole the steering wheel?"

The episode occurred several weeks ago, when the frigate Sussexvale was alongside C Jetty at HMC Dockyard. Some person or persons unknown—presumably from a rival ship—removed the wheel from the steering position and carried it away.

It can now be revealed that the wheel has been returned. It was finally found—nailed to the underside of C Jetty.

The culprits were found, too. They confessed. The navy won't say what punishment was meted out, regarding the whole affair as a family matter.

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes was a guest at a party at R. H. B. Ker's home during the recent electrical flash storm. The host asked His Honor to take a look at an arbutus tree in front of his home which had had its bark completely stripped by a bolt of lightning.

Half an hour later Mr. Ker asked some women guests to look at the same tree—but when they went to the window, they found that the arbutus was no longer standing.

Who was it that said "lightning never strikes twice in the same place?"

Another Victoria pioneer, Frank Mellor of 40 Olympia Avenue reached his 90th milestone on Monday.

He came to Victoria in 1893 and was a member of the firm of Mellor Brothers, paint and glass dealers.

During the First World War, Mr. Mellor acted as groomsmen for General Arthur Currie, commander-in-chief of Canada's forces overseas. Subsequently he was collector of amusement tax for the B.C. government.

He now lives with his daughter, Mrs. George E. Dyke. Another daughter, Mrs. C. D. Muir, lives at Everett, Wash.

Forestry Minister John R. Nicholson raised a few chuckles at Tuesday's cornerstone-laying of the new Federal Forestry Lab when he told of his first examination of plans for the $2½ million building.

"I found to my horror," he said, "that original plans called for an aluminum flag-pole."

"That's just one of the things that came out, in a hurry. We'll be using wood wherever possible throughout the building."

All set to record part of tonight's concert by the National Youth Orchestra is Hudson Blake, president of Victoria Tape-recording Club.

He has a high-fidelity recorder attached to his wheelchair and will take up an early point of vantage opposite the bandstand in the Butchart Gardens.

During last Sunday's heavy thunderstorm, Hudson was down on Clover Point recording the claps and getting "mad" whenever he missed a big one!

A friend of ours who recently visited Newfoundland sends us some interesting notes on one of Victoria's favorite people—Mrs. Margaret Harvey, who married Industrialist Charles Bell of St. John's. Our Maritime correspondent writes:

"Margaret has settled beautifully into the life of Newfoundland and is looking extremely well. The Bell place, called Frog Pond Farm, is well located, overlooking Conception Bay. Margaret supervised a dinner of Newfoundland dishes—poached smoked salmon, seal flipper pie and Newfoundland strawberries and 'scald' cream."

"I do not think that the farm's proximity to Conception Bay raises any problems for immediate alarm."

"I shall be in Victoria again next summer—please keep it beautiful for me," wrote 11-year-old William Marcus of Wibaux, Montana, U.S.A., to Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

"I was in Victoria last summer visiting my grandmother and grandfather at 707 Linden Avenue, and think it is lovely."

"But I failed to get much material on the city. Please send me some."

no personal God, was described earlier by the Archbishop of Canterbury as "confused."

NATIONS SEEK FRIENDS

Other points made by Canon Warren:

1. The West must drop its traditional air of superiority towards Asia and Africa, which is based on technical know-how and charity. The West has no monopoly on humanity and the new nations want friends not helpers.

2. The church, while continuing to share Western affluence with poor countries, must seek understanding of economic problems, including the implications of the population explosion.

3. The church must reconsider the nature of its missionary work among people who follow other religions such as Islam and Buddhism. "The walls of Jericho are not falling down at the blast of the gospel trumpet. The great ethnic religions of the world are certainly resurgent."

Other speakers dealt with detailed descriptions of rival ideologies—Bishop R. R. Brown of Arkansas on communism, totalitarianism and secularism; Canon A. Kenneth Cragg of Canterbury on Islam; Prof. Yoshimitsu Endo of Tokyo's Central Theological College on Buddhism; Rev. C. E. Tuboku-Metzger, Ghana's high commissioner (ambassador) in Sierra Leone, on native African churches.

Speakers traced similarities between other religions and Christianity and said the church must recognize these before it can argue its own uniqueness.

raised is whether the treaty would seriously handicap U.S. development of missile defenses.

Senator Richard B. Russell (Dem., Ga.) asked Seaborg whether he is confident an anti-missile missile program can be developed without further atmospheric nuclear testing.

Seaborg replied: "Yes, I do. The ABC is responsible for the development of the warhead for the missile. This can be done. We already have a number of warheads eligible for that purpose and can develop a new warhead by underground testing."

Seaborg also said "it is the national policy to maintain a continuing dynamic program of weapons development and a state of readiness to resume atmospheric testing should the treaty be abrogated."

He also said "promising applications of nuclear explosives for peaceful purposes will be developed and demonstrated under the treaty."

"At such times as the benefits have been demonstrated the parties may wish to modify the treaty to permit extension of the technology and benefits to all."

The foreign relations group with members of the armed services and Senate-House of Representatives atomic energy committees sitting in, is holding hearings on the treaty to prohibit testing in the atmosphere, underwater and in outer space, but not underground. Senate ratification requires a two-thirds majority.

While McNamara conceded that atmospheric testing of a complete anti-missile system would not be possible under the treaty, he insisted that a kind of testing would "not be necessary to reach a decision on whether or not we should deploy the system."

"We have tested the design on warhead to the extent that we know it will work," he said. McNamara said the Russians' high yield nuclear tests in the atmosphere in 1961 advanced their understanding of such a system, but he added he didn't believe the Soviet Union has developed a workable system. Nor, he said, has the United States.

"Good chance for them to show off their complexities," said a Celebrations' Association official today.

Prime Minister Gives New Data In Scandal Case

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Macmillan today gave further evidence to Lord Denning, who is conducting an official inquiry into the security aspects of the Profumo affair.

Meanwhile, an official spokesman said Denning, third-highest member of the judiciary, expected to finish gathering evidence today and hoped to present a report to Macmillan next month.

Denning was given the job after John Profumo resigned as war minister in June after admitting he lied to the House of Commons about his relationship with playgirl Christine Keeler. It was later learned Miss Keeler was having simultaneous affairs with Profumo and Yevgeny Ivanov, Russian naval attaché.

Since the inquiry began at the end of June, the 44-year-old judge has interviewed more than 150 witnesses including Miss Keeler and her friend, Mandy Rice-Davies.

After the Denning inquiry was announced, Harold Wilson, leader of the opposition Labor Party, called it "a bigger and vaster cover-up than ever before." He said the powers given Denning were inadequate.

Wilson says his party will resume battle with the government over the Profumo affair if it feels the results of the inquiry are incomplete.

written following a regular, executive meeting in Kamloops, B.C., June 15-16.

"The executive . . . decided that a letter should be sent pointing out certain activities of the previous two months were not doing the party any good."

"Complaints were laid by various people."

"We pointed out that they were allowing themselves to be used by Communist or Communist-front organizations."

NO REPLY

"We have had no reply. We let our sentiments be known and that's it. We'll probably get an acknowledgement and the subject will be closed."

Provincial president Fred Vulliamy, who signed the letter, was on vacation and unavailable for comment. Neither Mr. Herdridge nor Mr. Cox could be reached immediately.

The reprimand came to light when the Times published the text of Mr. Vulliamy's letter Tuesday.

VOTE UNANIMOUS

It read:

"The complaints concern attendance . . . at a meeting held in the Pender Auditorium in Vancouver last May 1."

"I was unanimously instructed by the executive to write and advise you that we take a very serious view of attendance by our elected representatives at such meetings."

"I am sure that with your many years of work for the good of the party, you will understand the feeling of the executive and will co-operate with it in such matters in future."

The rally was organized by a group of unions.

NOT SUPPORTED

E. P. (Pat) O'Neal, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor, said local unions, being autonomous, were free to act as they saw fit but that the federation did not support the rally.

Said Mr. O'Neal:

"The Communists have done everything they can to sabotage the CLC and the federation. Getting mixed up with them doesn't do the progressive labor movement or the NDP any good."

"I doubt that the rally was union-sponsored. Likely one or two from each union allowed his name to be used. I don't think you will find unions themselves actively sponsored it."

The reprimand was the second for Mr. Cox, criticized recently for accepting an expenses-paid tour of Cuba sponsored by the Castro regime.

GIRL DROWNS, SPECTATORS JUST WATCH

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — A teen-age Indian girl drowned here Tuesday while several bystanders stood around and watched. She was in a car which plunged from the ferry dock here into 14 feet of water just after midnight.

Bystanders could hear her honking the horn, knocking on the roof and they could see the car lights shining—but they made no move to help.

The first attempts to rescue her were made by Maurice Desautels and Bob Adams.

"The real heartbreaking part of it was that we could hear her. She must have been alive for about five minutes after the car went in," said Mr. Adams, "but I didn't reach her in time."

African Leader Backs Down On Plan for One-Man Rule

(Times News Services)

BRAZZAVILLE, Congo Republic—President Fulbert Youlou, jolted by a riot of strikers who charged graft and corruption, announced today he will form a new government and postpone establishment of one-party rule.

Youlou thus buckled under to the main demands of his opposition following savage fighting Tuesday and further disturbances today.

"I will open consultations with all (political) tendencies for the formation of a small team of technicians and men of good will whose essential task will be national reconciliation," he said.

The president had intended to dedicate the celebration Thursday of the third anniversary of the republic's independence from France to his new Party of the Congolese, which would have provided only a single election list.

He backtracked in a statement broadcast by Radio Brazzaville. This station had been damaged by strikers Tuesday in one incident of a battle with police in which strikers freed all 400 prisoners of the city prison at a cost of five dead and 12 wounded.

Explaining his decision to delay the one-party system, Youlou said: "This can only be realized when the reconciliation will be an established fact."

Youlou called on his countrymen to "cease all vain quarrels which can only damage the reputation of our country."

This broadcast followed one in which Youlou announced he was tightening his personal grip on the country and promised reforms.

"Because of the gravity of the situation, I am taking in my personal name the civil and military powers," Youlou said.

"A committee formed under the authority of the chief of state will be charged with re-establishing order, resuming work and carrying out necessary reforms."

Martial law preserved an uneasy calm in Brazzaville today. Loudspeaker trucks proclaimed a 24-hour curfew. White residents were partly exempted. They were permitted limited movement.

There was no public announcement, but it was understood Youlou would cancel Thursday's scheduled celebration of the third anniversary of the republic's independence from France. Youlou had intended to dedicate it to his new Party of the Congolese, which would have provided only a single election list.

Affected antibiotics include tetracycline, gramicidin and neomycin.

The industry spokesman said dozens of companies will be affected. FDA sources said there might be as many as 200, with at least as many products involved as companies.

U.S. Cracks Down On Drug Companies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has ordered drug manufacturers to prove their claims for antibiotics in a wide variety of compounds such as throat lozenges, nose drops and sprays which generally can be bought without prescription.

The FDA set a deadline of Sept. 6 in an order published in The Federal Register of July 23.

A spokesman for the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association said today many companies cannot comply by that date.

The spokesman expressed the opinion the companies probably cannot devise tests to prove the effectiveness of the drugs, as required, "let alone carry them out." He said he had no figure on the sales value of affected products, but that it is well over $1,000,000 a year.

The FDA has not questioned the safety of the antibiotics, but it said labelling claims on effectiveness of the products are not supported by available medical data.

The industry spokesman said dozens of companies will be affected. FDA sources said there might be as many as 200, with at least as many products involved as companies.

MISS VICTORIA GOING TO RIDE IN PNE PARADE

Merle Webb, Miss Victoria, will travel to Vancouver Friday with her princesses to ride on the City of Victoria float in the Pacific National Exhibition parade Saturday.

Riding with Merle will be Princesses Linden Louis and Ulla Pees.

The girls will have to be up at 7 on Saturday morning for the judging of parade entries.

"Good chance for them to show off their complexities," said a Celebrations' Association official today.

CLUBBED with a pipe by a fellow prisoner in the Atlanta, Ga., penitentiary today, racketeer Meyer (Mickey) Cohen is in serious condition. Cohen, 49, is serving a 15-year sentence for tax evasion. He was transferred to Atlanta when Alcatraz was closed.

15,000 Anglicans Open Toronto Rally

TORONTO (CP) — The World Congress of Anglicans went to work today discussing some of the tough challenges to the church that their leaders urged them to tackle at opening services Tuesday.

Congress chairman Howard H. Clark, Primate of all Canada, suggested at a launching rally of 15,000 Tuesday night that the church must "understand what is, before we begin pronouncing what ought to be."

Discussion today of faiths and ideas that rival Christianity followed the chairman's admonition by getting down to specific cases—the challenge of Islam in the Middle East, Buddhism in Asia, independent sects in Africa and Communism, totalitarianism and existentialist philosophy in the West.

The 1,000 bishops, clergy and laymen from more than 70 countries heard their leaders call Tuesday at a series of services for a new wave of positive Christianity that will wake up to the troublesome realities of secular life and deal with them.

GARDENS PACKED

"Our mission will be one of involvement," said the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, at a standing-room-only rally in Maple Leaf Gardens.

"Anglicans must tackle the 'here and now,' in the new nations, the rival religions and the secular world of science, philosophy and politics," he said. The church must be "in the people, of the people."

Archbishop Clark said that persons who profess no Christian faith may still be doing God's work in science, philosophy or social work.

"God does not spend all his time in church," he added.

The theme of Christian unity cropped up time and again at the congress.

"Today in an ecumenical age Christians everywhere are ready to go to one another," Dr. Ramsey said, adding that Roman Catholics and Anglicans are "speaking to one another in a new charity."

Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Montreal, has urged his church to pray for the Anglican congress and in a message expressed hope for church unity.

CATHOLICS ATTEND

An Anglican spokesman, said the cardinal's message and the fact that Roman Catholic guests are attending the congress open new hope for deeper understanding. He noted Roman Catholics were asked by their leaders not to attend the last Anglican congress in 1954 at Minneapolis.

Tuesday night's rally filled the big hockey arena with color, music and prayer.

A procession of bishops, clergy and lay delegates wound into the gardens behind delegation banners, the clergy wearing robes of many colors. A 1,000-voice choir sang a special anthem composed for the congress by Canadian composer Healey Willan.

The vast arena was silent but for the voice of Bishop Frederick Wilkinson of Toronto when he led the kneeling 15,000 in prayer.

Deep South Bishops Balk On Race Issue

TORONTO (CP) — Southern United States bishops complained Tuesday about resolutions passed on racial issues at a closed meeting of 100 Episcopal (Anglican) bishops.

The bishops decided to support clergymen wanting to take part in civil rights demonstrations against racial segregation in the U.S.

Rt. Rev. G. P. Gunn of the Southern Virginia diocese said the decision by the bishops Monday before the Anglican congress opened here was not unanimous "by any means."

"There were several of us who felt the resolution was not the way to accomplish anything," Bishop Gunn said. "It is better to keep lines of communication open—sitting around conference tables and that sort of thing—instead of having mass demonstrations. Mass meetings don't help anybody, and I certainly won't be marching on Washington."

Rt. Rev. S. B. Chilton, of Alexandria, Va., suffragan bishop in Virginia diocese, agreed with Bishop Gunn. Although he said he voted for the resolutions, Bishop Chilton said he did not favor personal involvement by clergymen in the march.

Rt. Rev. W. C. Campbell of Charleston in the West Virginia diocese, said: "I view with alarm any program which would congregate thousands to march on the nation's capital. 'It could be the beginning of chaos. However, I sympathize with those who feel compelled to act in this way and I have written to my clergy telling them to follow their own consciences.'"

Nuclear Club Spread Reduced

WASHINGTON (AP)—Japan's signing of the limited test ban treaty today brought to a dozen the number of nations with the potential for developing nuclear weapons who have committed themselves against testing in the atmosphere.

U.S. authorities believe enlistment in the treaty by these nations would serve to reduce the potential spread of independent nuclear forces.

While the adherence of small and underdeveloped countries to the ban can add to the moral pressure against testing, they said the commitment is especially important when binding large, advanced states where there might be thoughts of building a national atomic arsenal.

A country can still join the atomic circle by testing underground, as permitted by the treaty. But that method is more costly and difficult.

Among nations rated as having such a capability are China, Japan, West Germany, India, Italy, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Israel and perhaps Canada, the United Arab Republic, Argentina, Brazil and Mexico.

Along with Sweden, all of these have now signed: Japan, West Germany, which has announced it intends to sign, and China, which has announced it does not intend to. Another non-signer, France, has already developed something of an atomic force and China is believed on the way.

About 60 nations have joined the pact so far. Tuesday six more signings — Costa Rica, Iraq, Jamaica, Nicaragua, Spain and Syria—took place at the state department.

U.S. diplomatic reports from around the world now indicate that of 114 states in all, not counting the atomic big three, only five are unlikely to join the test ban. Besides China and France, these include Peking's supporters—North Korea, North Viet Nam and Albania.

YOUTH HURLS STONE over hated wall into East Berlin, in vicinity of border crossing point Checkpoint Charlie, during height of Tuesday night's rioting by West Berliners. Squads of armed police broke up demonstration by 1,500 on second anniversary of erection of barrier. (AP Wirephoto)

BERLIN WALL RIOTING

'Must Come Down' Demand Youths

BERLIN (Reuters) — Calm returned to West Berlin today following rioting Tuesday night by hundreds of youths demanding "the wall must come down."

The Communist-erected wall dividing East and West Berlin was two years old Tuesday and for most of the day there were no incidents. Feature of the day was a formal wreath-placing on the Western side in memory of persons who died trying to escape communism.

But later in the evening a group of youths broke through a police barrier at one point near Checkpoint Charlie — the crossing point for foreigners going into the Eastern sector—and tried to tear down the wall with their hands while other demonstrators hurled rocks over it.

DISPERSE CROWD

Squads of armed riot police had the crowd dispersed by midnight, but before they brought the situation under control rocks were hurled at an American military police car and a car bearing an East German diplomatic plate.

A side window was smashed in the East German car.

The police used truncheons to break up a crowd of 300 West Berlin youths who tried to stage a sitdown strike in the approaches to Checkpoint Charlie.

Flying stones seriously cut one youth and slightly hurt two others, police reported.

Several youth were arrested.

Mother Tarred, Feathered

WALNUT, Calif. (AP)—A 28-year-old mother of two was tied, coated with tar and feathers and left in a burning house Tuesday night, sheriff's deputies said.

Mrs. Katherine Gammon Harwell is in serious condition at General Hospital where doctors worked to remove the tar and feathers that covered part of her body.

She told police three men entered the house, knocked her down, cursed her, then tied her hands behind her back and threw her in a closet.

Then she smelled what appeared to be kerosene and shortly after felt heat from the burning house. She managed to drag herself outside before firemen arrived.

Robert H. Lewis, owner of the vacant house, said a Negro man was helping Mrs. Harwell clean up the house which had been damaged by fire in December, 1962.

Mrs. Harwell, who is white, said her attackers indicated she was being punished for her association with the Negro man, Wright said. The three men were white.

Wright said the Negro man ran when the three men entered and apparently escaped. The house was destroyed.

The Need of Confidence

AUSTRALIA, JAPAN AND other countries are asking the United States to exempt them from President Kennedy's proposed tax on capital exports. Canada, already exempted in respect of new security issues, asks that former issues be exempted also but the word from Washington is that American policy will not be further changed to help us or other heavy borrowers in the United States.

It is certainly clear that the Kennedy government intends to reduce capital exports by some means simply because it cannot afford them in the recent volume.

Perhaps the president will find his tax plan rejected by the Congress since it is, at best, a rather clumsy makeshift. But that would not alter the United States' problem or staunch the outflow of its gold reserves. If the problem cannot be solved by a tax on capital exports some other method undoubtedly will be devised.

Canada therefore must face the fact that it will not be able to borrow all the money it pleases from its neighbor even though, as Mr. Pearson says, Canada actually supplies the United States with a net balance of hard currency earned overseas.

The effects of this new situation cannot be calculated in advance but they are likely to be both good and bad.

On the one hand, it is desirable that provincial and municipal governments should borrow less in the United States, for non-productive purposes, however desirable they may be socially. The cost of such borrowings, in the form of interest charges, worsens our trade deficit.

On the other hand, we need American investment in large volume for the productive purposes of industry. If its flow is to be reduced Canada must seek business capital elsewhere, in Britain and Europe.

If we are to attract the kind of capital we need we must create confidence among foreign investors. It was lack of confidence, let us never forget, that precipitated our foreign exchange crisis a year ago when foreigners began to withdraw their money from Canada. The withdrawals were relatively small but they threatened, for a few days, to produce a disaster. And the same thing could happen again if investors' confidence were impaired by Ottawa's financial policies.

The perpetual deficits of the Diefenbaker government were the chief cause of last year's crisis, because they frightened investors, and the Pearson government wisely resolved to begin at once the necessary slow task of balancing the national budget. That bold attempt immediately collapsed. Retreating from his various tax plans, Mr. Gordon assured another budgetary deficit about as large as that of 1962-63, possibly larger.

All this, we may be sure, has been fully noted in the centres of the financial world and has done Canada's reputation no good. As we face official restrictions on our borrowings in the United States we cannot afford to impose unofficial restrictions by undermining our credit.

The best, and probably the only way to strengthen our credit is to put our federal finances in order after the complete disorder of the last six years. Mr. Gordon himself has insisted that such a policy is essential if we are not to end "on the rocks" but he has failed so far to enforce it.

He will have another chance when Parliament reassembles in the autumn. After the warnings we have received from Washington it is unthinkable that the repair of the national budget should be postponed until next year.

Inevitably it will involve higher taxes in some form but the government has no right to impose them until it has first demonstrated that it has held its expenditures to the lowest possible level. Without economy (which has not been practised in Canada for a decade at least) tax increases cannot be morally justified. The government's first duty is to attack the wholesale waste revealed by the Glasse Commission and visible everywhere to the eyes of the ordinary citizen.

The New Forestry Lab

CITIZENS OF GREATER VICTORIA will watch with pride and interest the development of Canada's finest Forest Research Laboratory, whose cornerstone was "well and truly laid" by the Hon. John R. Nicholson at a happy ceremony in Saanich Tuesday.

Decision to erect this handsome, $2½ million building in the Victoria area represents a high degree of co-operation by representatives of many governments. While there were strong arguments in favor of building it on the UBC campus, where forest research facilities already exist, it was recognized that close liaison must be maintained between the federal authorities and the provincial forestry service, and Victoria has the added practical value of being close to the magnificent forests on which the industrial complexes of Vancouver Island thrive.

The new laboratory will study forest insects and diseases, genetics, tree improvement, forest fire research and related matters, for—as Mr. Nicholson wisely observed—"research today provides the difference between survival and gradual extinction."

As a former president of the Council of Forest Industries of B.C., Mr. Nicholson had some kind words to say about the industry in this province. "No other industry in Canada," he observed, "has consistently displayed more imagination, more courage, or more aggressive marketing techniques than has the B.C. forest industry, competing successfully, as it does, in some 34 overseas markets . . . without any major governmental concessions. This is something of which all British Columbians should be aware and proud."

Mr. Nicholson also went out of his way to praise representatives of other governments who had assisted in development of the laboratory project. George Chatterton, Tory MP, was a platform guest and was saluted for the interest he had taken in negotiations for the building. Co-operation with the Provincial Forest Service in such fields as silviculture, ecology, tree-farming, disease and insect control "grows closer month after month."

Much of this is due, in the view of Ottawa observers, to the intelligent leadership which Mr. Nicholson is giving to the comparatively new forestry portfolio. One of his first acts on assuming cabinet rank earlier this year was to call in his deputies for briefings and examination of department projects. As a man who made a valuable wartime contribution to the development of Canada as an aide to the late C. D. Howe, and later as head of the giant Polymer Corporation, he may be expected to provide aggressive direction to the industry with which this province is inextricably linked. The new laboratory represents a major step forward, and provides a most welcome addition to the life of this community.

Helping Hand Withheld

IT SEEMS INCONCEIVABLE that a lifeguard's call for assistance in the rescue of a girl should go unheeded—in fact draw the response from another girl nearby, "Grab her yourself, you're the lifeguard." But this, we are told, happened at a Vancouver suburban swimming pool.

Our society seems to have reached a peculiar stage when a person refuses to lend a hand, which might mean the difference between life and death, merely because someone else is officially engaged for the job.

Fortunately the 13-year-old victim of near-drowning was revived by artificial respiration.

Only the lifeguard's story has been made public. The girl who made the smart-aleck's response may have had some reason for voicing it. But on the face of the report, a lot of parents should be making inquiries into the attitude of their youngsters toward others.

It might also be wise to determine why a lifeguard, usually an authoritative person around a swimming pool, was unable to command the response he might have expected from other swimmers.

In the meantime we are left wondering how the young lady who told the guard to "grab her yourself" might feel if, for some reason, she gets into difficulties in a supervised swimming area.

"It's incredible, but you're right, your Excellency . . . those ARE wings . . ."

Doggedly Determined to Win Canine Trade

THE department of trade and commerce, which worries habitually about lethargic exporters and the balance of payments, has turned its calculating eyes upon man's best friend. It is the official view in Ottawa that more should be done by prepared pet food producers to meet the revolution of rising canine expectations which has had such an impact on the post-war world.

Western

As with automation and other modern phenomena, the great change in the social status of the Canadian dog was far advanced before most people were aware of its existence. Even now it may come as a surprise to many to read that in 1962 we exported dog and cat foods to 20 countries and that our foreign markets, now worth close to $2,000,000 have barely been scratched. (We had also made some overtures to the Cuban dog but these, apparently, had been vetoed by Mr. Castro.)

Foreign Trade in its summer issue, has nothing to say about the origins of the welfare state for cultivated canines. The authors merely accept it as a fact, noting that in North America generally pets now consume more canned meat products than do their masters, who probably get along with what is left over. This explains the rapidly with which the dog is displacing homo sapiens in the affections of Supermarketers.

There is already a special diet for the thoughtful dog, prepared possibly by the sacrifice of thoughtful horses. No doubt other sophisticated products are on their way, addressed variously to the particular tastes of the dog of action, the dog of refinement and the dog who lies awake at nights worrying about the balance of payments.

FROM LONDON

Packaged Fare

The problem for the Canadian exporter is to create a demand among the unemancipated dogs of the wealthier Western countries. There is no obvious reason why French dogs should continue to accept old bones when Puerto Ricans have been awakened to the mouth-watering possibilities of packaged fare.

It is encouraging to read that our exports increased by 50 per cent in 1962. But this is only a beginning. Trade and commerce expects every exporter to do his duty for reasons of patriotism, profit and proper concern for under-privileged dogs.

By RICHARD PURSER

Preparing for a Pre-Campaign Campaign

BRITISH politics have gone into a state of merciful suspension following Parliament's rise. But so many issues are hanging fire this year that the summer recess may not be its usual quiet self. A number of things could happen to ruin the politicians' holidays.

The most fearfully awaited forthcoming event is the Denning report into the Profumo affair. Lord Denning was to finish interviewing more than 150 members of the all-star cast this week, and it is known that many an eminent name has been dropped before his judicial ear.

The question is which, if any, names he will deem worthy of including in his report. If the Macmillan government gets a clean bill—one which does not strike Parliament as a whitewash—the prime minister has no great cause for immediate worry. He will be able at least for a few crucial weeks to prepare in his own way to do "what's right for the party."

Following his present Scandinavian visit, Mr. Macmillan will spend a few days at his London office before starting his own holidays. At this time he will probably get at least a partial fill-in on what awaits him in the Denning report, and will have a chance to plot strategy accordingly.

Rumors that the government will get off easily and that it will be hit badly are equally current—and equally meaningless, since Lord Denning isn't talking.

There has been widespread speculation that Mr. Macmillan may be planning another big cabinet shuffle during the recess, but it is not easy to support such a suggestion. The party had enough of an upheaval after last summer's cabinet slaughter, and it is not the sort of thing the prime minister can do again without confessing the failure of his last attempt to update the government. He may, however, manage to promote one or two deserving colleagues, such as Mr. Heath.

Much space in print here is being devoted to the probable date of the general election and the likelihood of Mr. Macmillan still being leader of the party at that time.

The political correspondents' efforts are essentially fruitless. Both decisions are up to the prime minister, and until he makes them no one else whatever will know the answers. Even the Conservative party central office, which must wage the government's campaign for re-election, has no idea whether to launch a heavy promotion campaign now or save its resources for the spring. Nor do they know whether to prepare posters and literature on the basis of Mr. Macmillan or someone else as leader.

The party is settling for a large continuing pre-campaign campaign, so to speak, while maintaining itself fully geared to start a full campaign on short notice.

Fund-raising and co-ordination of activities with conservative-minded groups outside the party are well advanced; a confidential folder has been distributed to constituency organizations containing advice on speeches and campaigning; constituencies are being canvassed for voters' intentions and public opinion; Conservative college undergraduates are being recruited for summer "softening-up" work in marginal constituencies; advertising poster sites have been hired all over the country; and an ad agency and management consultant firm are mapping campaign plans.

The Labor party, with its much smaller resources, is in a more difficult position. If it gambles on a heavy summer and fall campaign, it risks being caught short of funds if the election is delayed until later next year.

However, Labor plans a higher rate of continuing public expenditure than usual for the month to come. Odds appear to be well against an autumn election, but a good report card from Lord Denning plus continued favorable fallout from the Moscow test ban talks plus a good Conservative performance in the byelection for John Profumo's former seat plus improved opinion poll ratings plus a good employment and consumer spending report from the Treasury—all these factors and more will be weighed by the prime minister for decision before the October party conference.

A consideration that could incline Mr. Macmillan to a surprise election, all else being equal, is that with his MPs scattered to the winds by the recess he could catch the party rebels short before they can regroup their forces under cover of another session of Parliament.

There is no doubt that at least a 100 Tory MPs are grimly determined to get Mr. Macmillan out before an election. So far, the mysterious ways in which the party works have foiled them at every turn. If they could settle on a successor and win support for their candidate from most of the cabinet, they would have a better chance. Mr. Macmillan will not go to the Queen until he can tell her who to send for without fear of causing a party split.

As Our Readers See It

Mr. Mayse on Education

Education is one of Mr. Mayse's favorite hobby-horses. Virulent have been his comments about the department of education's decision to cancel supplementals for Grades XI and XII, and he did a good deal to establish himself as the champion of the mentally lazy and mediocre.

Dean Chant has come under fire for suggesting that the mentally superior student should not be held back by his less gifted comrades. Now Dr. Stroll has been ticked off for complaining about the far from idyllic conditions at UBC, conditions which Dr. Stroll asserted to be a reason for his departure to greener academic pastures.

Mr. Mayse writes eloquently, but I am not convinced. Our high school curriculum is not excessively difficult—the opposite rather is true—and, as Dr. English pointed out, deserving students have not been kept by one failure from getting university entrance standing. Those who still did not get by might as well wake up early to the fact that, if nothing succeeds like success, nothing fails like failure.

Dean Chant's apparent belief that a student's education should be geared to his native ability seems to me to be unexceptionable. As for your columnist's chagrin about Dr. Stroll's remarks, the real point of these remarks seems to have been missed. Dr. Stroll may not have been as tactful as the late Dale Carnegie would have advised, but he was right in drawing attention to UBC's financial plight.

The main body of Mr. Mayse's August 7 column contained fact and opinion about Canadian emigration to the U.S.A. As an obvious reflection on Dr. Stroll this was unfair, for UBC's sometime philosopher received his higher education south of the border. As a comment on a situation to which Maclean's also drew attention it has its limitations. And Mr. Mayse's tentative solution ignores a basic fact about Canada. Had England and Europe limited emigration in the manner that he proposes, many outstanding professional men would never have reached our shores. Circumstances in Europe have favored us; it seems unreasonable to wish to restrict emigration of professional men to the United States because in relation to us the circumstances appear to favor our southern neighbor.

I say "appear" advisedly, for Dr. MacDonald is reported to have stated that B.C., at least, has benefited from the emigration-immigration balance. UBC and U of V both have a very large number of faculty members who received all or part of their higher education in the United States. An examination of the calendars of universities as varied as U of Oregon, New York U and Columbia reveals only a handful of professors who received even a part of their higher education in Canada; none, I recall, had all of it up here. Other professions may not show up as well as university teachers, but as far as the latter are concerned the picture is not as desperate as Maclean's and your columnist paint it.

Interesting as are Mr. Mayse's remarks about fishing, hunting and the days of yore may be, he seems to go off the deep end whenever he writes about education.

Who Flew the Mails?

I am making a study of the postal history of Yukon Territory and would be most grateful if you would help me by publishing this letter, to see if any of your readers can clear up a mystery surrounding the early airmail services.

The activities of the Yukon Airways & Exploration Company are well known and authenticated, including their use of a special adhesive stamp in dark blue of letters carried. There is, however, another adhesive stamp found in the hands of collectors, in the pale blue, which purports to be that of a company called "Klondike Airways Ltd." which is said to have carried mail for 25 cents per letter between Whitehorse, Mayo, Keno and Dawson in November and December, 1928.

So far I have not been able to find anything which confirms this. On the contrary two old timers who lived in Yukon at that time tell me that such a firm existed but never owned a plane, being freighters using truck or "cat" only, for transport.

Just recently I have found the following notice in the Canadian Supplement of The Financial Times dated December 15, 1928. If someone can tell me the name of this firm which bought these planes, it would be a great help; and it is perhaps not too much to hope that there may be a reader who will give me some invaluable information about the mail-carrying activities of this firm and also of Klondike Airways.

Quote from The Financial Times: "The Yukon firm which has had the mail-carrying contract between Whitehorse and Dawson for many years will adopt the airplane this winter. After passing through many stages of development of transportation in the far north, including dogsleds, horse-drawn stages, motor trucks and caterpillar tractors, this pioneer firm has purchased two planes, a Fairchild all-purpose monoplane and a De Havilland Moth. A feature of the latter is the slotted-wing equipment, the first plane on the coast to have this safety device. Both planes will be fitted with skis and will have pontoon and wheel landing gear as well."

"The Fairchild plane will be used for express and freight and for occasional passenger carrying as well. It will also be used in carrying freight for the Treadwell Yukon Mines Company."

Advantage of Being An MP

The advantage of being a member of Parliament is that you don't have to go on strike for higher pay you simply vote your self a 40 per cent increase and then take a two-month vacation.

Incidentally, when asked why the old age pensioner could not be granted a $10 increase immediately, Mr. Pearson replied the treasury would not stand it at present.

A Little Rusting History

IT'S years since I picked my way between old stone-walled buildings off Store Street over an uneven path that led to a decrepit wharf where Max Lohbrunner moored his launch Mel.

I haven't heard Max's stories of the old sealing days since the children were young and I occasionally took my small son to listen to tales stranger than fiction.

But memories of the visits remain fresh. I can still hear Max speaking about the sea otter that came to visit him nightly and which he fed with fish heads on the old wharf where salvage was piled in a way that might have invited Harry Haigh's envy. I have wondered, occasionally, if the sawbill still fluttered down to the side of the Mel for feeding and feeding between migratory flights that take ducks away.

And I have wondered, also, if Max has ever committed to paper the lore and survival knowledge that bubbled from him once he started talking to anyone he liked.

"Max Lohbrunner could live like a king on the beach where you'd starve," Tommy Spouse once told me. When I asked Max what was edible in the sea and on the shore and how it was prepared for human consumption, he convinced me that Tommy was right. My difficulty, apart from ignorance in such matters, is that I'm not fussy about sea foods.

Now I notice that officialdom has informed Max he's trespassing by mornning his old whaler, the Green, to city property. If the due processes of law run their course, I guess Max will have to move the old craft. Somehow I hope the due processes of law won't run. Max and his possessions seem to me more important than a tidy shore.

In human values, they unquestionably are.

Only Max understands why he bought the old Green—perhaps with the idea of turning a profitable dollar on its resale. The rusty old hulk never impressed me as a good investment, but it has associations as part of the old whaling fleet that are impressive. In time it might have historic worth greater even than the encrusted mud-hook occasionally turned up in these parts as a reminder of Spanish sailing ships that once rode these waters.

Historical value is no doubt relative. The importance of the whaling fleet and the personalities and adventures of the old sealing days will probably not be widely recognized until few souvenirs of their existence remain.

People a few generations hence will wonder if Jack London's "Sea Wolf" presented a true picture of life aboard a sealer with a driving captain, or if it was the familiar example of literary license by a writer creating the stereotyped top man of the "bad guys" known to readers of "westerns."

I'm told that a sealing skipper had to be a pretty tough person, but that Captain Alex McLean, on whom London is supposed to have based his character—and whose schooner used to tie up below the Point Ellice Bridge with the other sealers—wasn't all that bad or mad.

Max Lohbrunner, whose marksmanship put him in the top boat for several seasons operating out of Victoria to the Pribilofs and east to Hakodate, is one of the few authentic sealers left who could, and who does, recount this colorful history.

Most people appreciate the necessity of observing laws against trespass, but I find it a bit heartless to tell representatives of the old sealing days to "move along" in a city which counted sealing a highly important industry in former times. I can't help resenting any suggestion that Max, who could shoot a dime out of the air with a rifle if anyone flipped up a coin for him in his prime, is being pushed around.

I don't know what you do with a rusty old whaler. But I have faith that authority in City Hall, with an appreciation for old time Victoria, will look after my friend.

Ulcer Treatment

A number of people have been writing to ask me if they should go ahead and have their stomachs frozen in order to cure their ulcers. In this procedure a rubber balloon is pushed down the gullet into the stomach, and then some very cold alcohol is run through the balloon for perhaps an hour. In some cases the idea is to just cool the stomach, while in others the idea is to freeze it.

The process is supposed to cut down on the acidity of the gastric juice (some physicians say now that this object, at least in their experience, was seldom attained). In many cases the technic has stopped gastric bleeding, but in some reported cases, it has caused bleeding.

Naturally, the best results have been obtained by the experts in Minneapolis who have "frozen" hundreds of stomachs. A man who treats in this way only a half dozen men may not do so well.

A number of physicians around the U.S. who are now reporting results not as good as those obtained in Minneapolis are suggesting that men with mild ulcers and bearable symptoms wait a while until the technique is perfected; and doctors all over warn the medical profession of the possible dangers and how they can be avoided.

There is a letter in the New England Journal of Medicine in which a physician reported one very bad result. Apparently he froze the stomach of his patient until it was inclined to fall apart. Now Dr. Morton I. Grossman, editor of the journal, Gastroenterology, asks, "Is gastric freezing safe?" He says that already some men have reported that freezing caused ulcers in the stomach, or death of part of the wall of the stomach, with the punching through of a hole, or severe bleeding. Grossman says that "Some of these complications have been fatal."

All of this causes him to feel that it would be fairer to Dr. Wangenstein if physicians would study the technic a little longer before they rush to use it on their patients. Doubtless the main thing physicians must learn is not to destroy a part of the wall of the stomach by too much freezing.

After 53 years of treating ulcers, I would like to emphasize here that in all but a few of the cases I see, all the man needs to get excellent relief and an apparent healing of his ulcer, is to find mental peace. For years I have rarely put a man with an ulcer into a hospital, and I almost never permit one to be operated on.

Many a man with a very painful ulcer I have cured overnight simply by inducing him to get out of a very distressing job. If any pain stays for a while to bother the man, I teach him to control it by munching half a dozen tablets of malted milk every two hours. If he has severe night pain I have him set his alarm clock so that he can wake for a minute at midnight and take a small glass of milk—before his pain is due—then his ulcer soon heals.

HOME GARDEN

By HILDA BEASTALL

Now Is the Hour for Lily Bulbs

The Madonna-lily (Lilium candidum) while known to gardeners and liked by the majority, is not so often seen now as 15 to 20 years ago.

This fragrant lily is the first to bloom in early summer, a popular association being blue delphiniums and a pink climbing rose.

Lily bulbs are scaly things and they tend to dry rapidly if out of the ground for more than a week or so. The scales become soft and flabby, making them more liable to rot in damp soil.

August is the only month when this particular lily is dormant, and the bulbs should be planted now.

If a group of them seem to be too crowded in your garden, now is the time to lift them for separating and replanting.

A sunny spot should be chosen, having as a soil rich in humus yet well drained. If the soil is inclined to be heavy, a fair quantity of coarse sand should be mixed with it, and the bulbs themselves surrounded with sand.

The first time I dug a clump of these Madonna lilies I was amazed how close they were to the soil surface. It seemed that they had worked their way up, until they were barely covered. Fortunately the garden was in a mild section of Victoria where the soil was rarely if ever frozen in winter.

When replanting, it is well to plant shallow. A couple of inches of soil over the tip of the bulb will be about right.

During September a rosette of leaves will appear above ground. These will continue to grow while the weather is mild and will keep the bulb well nourished during winter, allowing it to make its flower stem by late spring.

It is a good policy to cut off the rosette leaves as soon as the flower stem begins to emerge in spring. Any disease spores which may have overwintered there can be destroyed in the fire instead of spreading to the new growth, or to tulips in the vicinity.

Revolution at Any Cost Their Aim

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

Associated Press Staff Writer

The Red Chinese, bidding for leadership of Communists in the underdeveloped world, are trying to capture that element among Latin America's young men who would welcome any change, as long as it is violent.

Echoes of the Soviet-Chinese quarrel reverberate loudly among Latin American Communists. In many areas, they already are divided into the contending camps.

There are not many Communists in Latin America—perhaps about 250,000 card-carriers. But Castroism provided them with fruitful sources for recruiting fellow-travellers. Their potential for mischief is big in an area smoldering with revolutionary restlessness.

Red China's line is revolution at any cost. This appeals to young men who ache for swift upheaval.

The Soviet line advocates violence only where it does not raise the threat of U.S. intervention and possible involvement of Moscow in a dangerous crisis. The Soviet line preaches capture of labor movements, strikes and demonstrations, electoral campaigns for seats in parliaments, united fronts with other parties of the left, all manner of presence against established regimes.

BRAZIL REDS SPLIT

Nowhere have the results of the argument been so clearly crystallized as in Brazil, which is beset by monumental economic and political problems. In Brazil, the Communist party—illegal but operating openly—seems to be ripped apart.

Last month at a Communist-backed "seminar of students from underdeveloped countries" in Brazil, the meeting broke into two camps. Pro-Russians raved through a resolution supporting both peaceful and non-peaceful ways to revolution, but they won only because of support from leftist but non-Communist students. Most of the Communists in the delegations leaned to the Chinese line.

Today, Brazil has two Communist parties.

The splinter group is the Communist Party of Brazil which has about 5,000 card-carrying followers and is headed by a three-man committee. Its adherents are mostly young men and extremists from the hungry, violence-minded northeast, chronically poverty-stricken. It's pro-Chinese.

The Brazilian Communist Party is pro-Russian. It has about 30,000 card-carrying followers. Its leader, veteran Luis Carlos Prestes, in the best Moscow tradition calls the other group "anti-party."

Both sides watch Cuba as a key to their future. But the Communists of Cuba themselves seem divided.

Despite Premier Fidel Castro's heavy dependence on Russia for his regime's existence, his lieutenants are pushing the violence line espoused by the Chinese. The pro-Moscow, old-line Communists in Havana support the more cautious approach of Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

APPEALS TO YOUTH

Castro calls his revolution an example to Latin America. Like the Chinese, he appeals to young men. His brand of communism has young, violence-minded zealots in many areas.

Guerrilla fighters long have been active in Venezuela, attempting to prevent orderly elections this year and to reduce the nation to chaos. In Ecuador, during the regime of the recently deposed President Carlos Arosemena, terrorism was popular with young revolutionary elements. It has diminished since Arosemena's fall.

In Mexico and Central America, there are signs that the Communists are dividing into two camps. Castro agents are reported stepping up their activities on behalf of the violent line in Central America.

In Peru, which has about 10,000 card-carrying Communists, the pro-Chinese are the young men. His brand of communism has young, violence-minded zealots in many areas.

Earth Boasts Tail

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
LOS ANGELES (AP)—Imagine a hurricane wind smashing an invisible wall?

Space satellites are finding evidence that just such a collision occurs 40,000 miles from earth with dramatic effect, Dr. Louis A. Frank and Dr. James Van Allen of the State University of Iowa said today.

The wind is composed of atomic particles from the sun and smacks the walls of the earth's magnetic field at its outer limit.

The collision, Dr. Frank said, could explain why the shimmering northern lights turn on; why the earth has a long tail stretching out on its nightside; why radios, sometimes black out; what some radiation hazards are for astronauts and even how the outer Van Allen radiation belt is formed.

Frank, 24, read the joint report to a symposium summarizing the results of the International Geophysical Year in 1957-58, when space satellite exploration began. It was then that the first Van Allen radiation belt girdling the earth was detected.

Subsequent data from satellites, especially Explorers X, XII and XIV and SIV, and the Soviet's Mars I, II and Lunik II, have formed this picture for scientists:

1. The solar wind, composed of electrons and protons, runs into the outer limits of the earth's magnetosphere, the field of magnetic force surrounding the earth about 40,000 miles out.

2. A shock wave is created when the solar wind, travelling many thousands of miles an hour, strikes this magnetic field. The wind "bounces" back but much of it could flow on around, pushing the earth's magnetic field into a tail on the dark side of the earth.

In an amplifying interview, Frank said the evidence could explain a number of phenomena, including some that are witnessed on earth.

It could explain how some of the solar wind particles reach earth to cause northern lights or produce storms high in the atmosphere that make radio communications fail.

Building Falls, 8 Die

BOMBAY (Reuters) — Part of a building collapsed in South Bombay Tuesday night, killing eight persons, including a child, and injuring at least 19. More people were feared trapped in the debris.

FOREST LAB CORNERSTONE LAID

Crucial Margin Provided By Research Says Minister

Research provides the margin of success over failure in the forest industry, Forestry Minister J. R. Nicholson said here Tuesday.

The federal minister spoke to guests at a cornerstone-laying ceremony for his department's $2,399,000 research laboratory under construction by Burns and Dutton Construction (1962) Ltd., off Burnside near Trans-Canada Highway.

The minister laid the stone assisted by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes. The governor handed him current postage stamps, coins, a message from the prime minister and the calling cards of the lieutenant-governor, Mr. Nicholson and his wife, to be sealed in a copper box behind the stone.

"In all fields of large-scale industrial competition, research now plays the dominant role," Mr. Nicholson said.

Tax Favoritism' Hit By Retail Merchants

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia division of the Retail Merchants Association of Canada, endorsing a similar brief from its sister organization in Ontario, today criticized the "outrageous tax favoritism" shown co-operatives.

The association told the royal commission on taxation there is no justification for sections of the Income Tax Act which "extravagantly discriminate against ordinary business."

The brief called for equalization of taxation between co-op and corporate organizations. Co-operatives, which can deduct patronage dividends from taxable income; normally pay less income tax than shareholder corporations.

"Retailers have felt the impact of these extreme tax inequities for years," said the brief. While they are willing to meet any form of competition they cannot compete with what amounts to a government tax subsidy."

"ABOLISH HOLIDAY" The association also said the three-year tax holiday given co-ops should be abolished. To extend the holiday to all forms of new businesses would not lessen the discrimination, it was argued. This would only result in new discrimination — between new business and old.

Nothing short of absolute equality between co-ops and other corporations would solve the tax controversy and restore fair competition.

"We believe that co-operatives are well able to stand on their own feet; meet their obligations to society through paying their full share of income tax and still carry out the useful and profitable role in the business world."

Another complaint of the association involves the growth of duty-free shops in Canada — places where tourists can buy imported goods and have them shipped to their homes without customs duty, excise or sales taxes.

These shops divert trade from established retailers in the country, the brief said. They also reduce national revenue, and they don't encourage visitors, particularly those from the United States, to travel inland beyond the duty-free shops.

"In the world's great basic industries, research provides the difference between survival and gradual extinction — research provides that crucial margin of advantage."

He said industrialists and businessmen who fail to accept this fact are doomed.

MOST MODERN

The building will provide by 1965, the latest, perhaps the world's most modern, forest research laboratories; a greenhouse, administration offices and accommodation for all forestry department personnel located in Victoria.

It covers 80,000 square feet arranged in an exaggerated "T" with native woods used wherever possible in construction and finishing.

Studies undertaken will encompass forest insects and diseases, genetics, tree improvement, forest fires and related matters.

NEW ERA

Mr. Nicholson foresaw a new era in a vital field of study, of "immense potential value to the B.C. forest community . . . and Canadian forestry in general."

He said no other Canadian industry has displayed more imagination, courage or aggressive marketing techniques than has the B.C. forest industry, competing in 34 overseas markets.

NO PESSIMISM

Earlier, Mr. Nicholson told Victoria Kiwanis Club, "There is no room for pessimism in Canada today."

Speaking on "Jobs for Canadians," the minister urged development of more secondary industries, reversal of a trend toward foreign control of Canadian resources and industries, and action to encourage more Canadians to invest in equity stocks in Canadian enterprise.

PHILISTINES

Biblical City Unearthed

JERUSALEM (AP)—Part of Ashdod, one of five Philistine cities mentioned in the Bible, has been dug up in the coastal belt of Israel between Tel Aviv and the Gaza Strip.

Prof. David N. Freedman of the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary, who directed the excavating, says Ashdod is the largest Holy Land town yet unearthed from the iron age—the 12th to the sixth centuries before Christ.

Freedman said this year's excavation turned up much evidence of how Ashdod looked during the transition from the late bronze period—the 16th to the 13th centuries B.C. — to the early iron age.

That, he said, means from the last Canaanite settlement to the Philistine occupation.

There is evidence, he added, supporting the traditional view that advancing Israelites prompted by religious fanaticism destroyed the Canaanite city of Ashdod in the 13th century B.C. There is no evidence that the Israelites afterward occupied the site, and it probably remained in ruins until the Philistines rebuilt it.

FIND FORTRESS

The two Philistine occupation levels identified so far are obviously from the 12th and 11th centuries B.C. They include the remains of a fortress with brick walls about four feet thick.

The tower of this fortress is assumed to have been used as a lookout over the Via Maris, a great highway that ran along the Mediterranean coast from Egypt toward Syria and Mesopotamia and was of strategic importance to the Pharaohs, Napoleon and British Gen. Sir Henry Allenby.

FEATHERS BEGAN IT

The earliest golf balls were known as "featheries" and were made of stitched leather covers packed with boiled feathers.

Bennett Shifts Power Queries Back to Bonner

LONDON (CP) — Premier Bennett of British Columbia refused Tuesday to mix the pleasure of business with problems facing his government at home.

He said all questions concerning Credit government and the British Columbia Power Corporation should be referred to his attorney-general, R. W. Bonner.

"This is the advantage of having a good cabinet," Bennett said with a chuckle as he relaxed in his hotel room after a busy round of talks with British and Canadian businessmen.

The dispute between the B.C. government and B.C. Power centres around a recent court finding that the government takeover of B.C. Electric Company was illegal. The parties are debating a purchase price and who should run the company until settlement.

'WAS HALF WAY'

Asked why he scheduled a visit here while his government was involved in the dispute, Bennett said he was in Nova Scotia attending a meeting of provincial premiers and thus "was half way to London."

"British Columbia lives on its export trade," Bennett said, "and I came here to meet industrialists, businessmen, heads of banks, officials of B.C. House and Canada House and also to persuade firms to take part in the British Columbia Trade Fair next May."

Bennett said he was "extremely pleased" with his progress so far. He said he did not yet know when he would be returning home.

Rush-Hour Fire Stalls Traffic

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hundreds of rush-hour motorists ran into a traffic tie-up Monday as fire destroyed a wood-working factory and an adjoining house near the centre of the False Creek industrial area here.

It took 100 firemen more than an hour to quell the blaze. No one was injured.

The fire broke out shortly after 5 p.m., sending flames leaping hundreds of feet in the air and destroying the Johnson Sash and Door Company plant.

TO BE PROFUMO'S SUCCESSOR, at least as the MP for the riding, is the chief desire of British screaming pop singer "Lord Sutch," who is noted also for his waist-length hair. Signing autographs at Stratford-on-Avon, the 22-year-old singer said when he is elected he'll gain attention of the House by screaming and shaking his head of hair. He is one of five candidates for the seat vacated by John Profumo's cabinet resignation due to sex scandal.

U.S. Offers New Arms Ban Formula

GENEVA (AP) — The United States called on the Soviet Union today to follow up the limited test-ban treaty with specific agreements to stop the nuclear armaments race and reduce the stock of fissionable material used to produce atomic bombs.

U.S. Ambassador Charles C. Stelle submitted specific proposals on nuclear arms control to the 17-nation disarmament conference. They would put a ceiling on the capabilities of the nuclear powers' atomic weapons and provide for a subsequent cutback by transferring significant quantities of uranium 235 to purposes other than nuclear weapon production.

Stelle revealed that the United States is willing to transfer a larger amount of fissionable material than the Soviet Union should Russia feel this is needed to protect Soviet interests.

Stelle said he proposed this to the Soviet co-chairman of the conference, Semyon K. Tsarapkin, last April.

At that time, he said, "my delegation told the Soviet delegation that transfer by the United States of 60,000 kilograms ($132,277 pounds) and by the U.S.S.R. of 40,000 kilograms (88,184 pounds) could be an example of such an arrangement.

"Unfortunately, the reaction of the Soviet delegation to this approach has been negative."

"However, we have not abandoned the hope that after further study the Soviet Union will find our proposals worthy of serious examination . . . so that we may reach agreement on what in our view would be another step in the direction both sides desire."

Mobster Held Under Guard

FORT MONMOUTH, N.J. (AP) — This heavily guarded army post was disclosed today as the secret hideout of Joseph Valachi, the former mobster reported to be facing an underworld death sentence for informing on a United States-wide crime syndicate called Cosa Nostra.

Valachi's presence here under heavy guard was confirmed by army information officer Peter Hoffman after the New York Daily News reported it in a copyrighted story.

Valachi for more than a year has been telling all he knows about the U.S. $40,000,000 annual crime industry to justice department agents.

They have sworn to keep him alive despite a reported $100,000 underworld offer to whoever kills him for violating crime's code of silence.

Valachi has a date to tell Senate investigators, his story that Cosa Nostra controls the country's underworld through a ruling council of crime "families," headed by narcotics boss Vito Genovese, Valachi's former cellmate in the Atlanta federal penitentiary.

The date of Valachi's appearance before the Senate investigations subcommittee, headed by Senator John L. McClellan (Dem. Ark.), is being kept secret and elaborate precautions are planned to protect him in the crowded hearing room.

Alberta Collars Willingdon Cup By Steady Play

By W. R. WHEATLEY

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — The Canadian amateur golf championship was under way today in the wake of an Alberta victory in the interprovincial team competition and a qualifying round for match play that knocked out no serious contenders.

Alberta's successful bid for the Willingdon Cup came about because its four-man team played the most consistent golf. The all-Calgary squad, led by two strokes going into Tuesday's second 18-hole round, finished with an aggregate medal score of 583 and coasted in for a seven-stroke lead over the B.C. contenders.

The defending Ontario team nosed out Manitoba for third place by one stroke, 598 to 599. Bert Ticehurst of Vancouver emerged from the simultaneous qualifying round as a medalist with an even-par 142 on rounds of 69-73.

Bill Wakeham of Victoria was second low for B.C. with 74-72-146. Other members of the B.C. team also qualified. Don Gardner shot 73-75-148; Doug Reid had 77-77-154.

Ticehurst is the first man away today in the opening round of the amateur title, drawn against Peter Hope of Dartmouth, N.S., who shot 152 for his Nova Scotia team.

WESLOCK AT 143

Veteran Nick Weslock of Toronto, 1957 champion finished with 143. At that figure he was tied with two outside threats for the amateur title—49-year-old Tom Draper of Royal Oak, Mich., runner-up last year, and George Wardman of Bermuda who has bobbed up as something of a surprise with rounds of 72-71.

John Poyen, 47-year-old Calgary businessman, supplied the firepower for Alberta Tuesday with a 69—the only other two-under-par figure in the two rounds along with Ticehurst's first-round blast.

Poyen finished with a 145 total, tied by teammate Keith Alexander with 73-72. Joe Ferguson shot 72-74 for 146.

Doug Silverberg became high man for the Alberta team with 147 after an opening round 70. Silverberg shot a par 36 over the Riverside course front nine Tuesday but took 41, six over par, coming back.

The high point of his sudden reverse came at the par-five 14th where he drove out of bounds and wound up with an eight.

SECOND FOR ALBERTA

The Alberta victory—in which two strokes was the maximum difference among the four players—was Alberta's second since the Willingdon Cup was put into competition. Alberta won in 1960 after a playoff with British Columbia.

Fifth place in the team play ended in a tie at 618 between Quebec and the New Brunswick Prince Edward Island competition. Nova Scotia was next with 627 and Saskatchewan finished eighth with 636.

In the two-day 36-hole qualifying round practically half the field came through unscathed for the 64 places open.

When the round ended in a drizzling rain Tuesday, 63 had qualified with scores of 158 or better. Six were tied at 159 and a playoff for the one spot still open dragged on into near darkness and more rain.

The survivor was Mike Whitney of Kitchener after four holes of extra play. Eliminated along the route were Ed Maclean of Montreal, C. H. F. Hutchings of Bermuda, Glen Seely of Ottawa and Bill Davidson and Walter Gov of Saint John.

The opening 18-hole round of match play today will be followed by two rounds each on Thursday and Friday. The final on Saturday is a 36-hole affair.

PIGTAILS AWAY!

Pigtails go flying around her neck as 11-year-old Janie Fassinger of New Castle, Pa., follows through on drive during U.S. national girls' junior golf tournament at Albany, N.Y.

Yankees Can Be Nabbed Says Optimistic Lopez

By United Press International

There's a fellow in Chicago who says the Yankees can still be overtaken.

His name is Al Lopez, his White Sox have won 15 of their last 20 games and his feeling is "a lot of things can happen in seven weeks."

Something happened Tuesday night that made Lopez even more optimistic. One of his rookie pitchers, Dave DeBusschere, hurled his first complete game in the majors and his first shutout in beating Cleveland Indians, 3-0.

The victory boosted the second place White Sox 8½ games behind the rain-outed Yankees, and although that still leaves a lot of hay to be mown, Lopez refuses to concede.

RODGERS BLEW LEAD

"We still have a chance," he insists. "The Yankees have a good ball club but they're not infallible. I remember a Dodger club that had a 13-game lead and lost."

DeBusschere heightened Lopez' hopes with a steady six-hit effort that earned him his third victory against four losses.

The White Sox collected only five hits off loser Jim (Mudcat) Grant and Early Wynn. Nellie Fox had a double and two singles, driving in one run and scoring another.

In other AL action, Baltimore mauled Minnesota, 6-1, Kansas City downed Detroit, 4-2, and Los Angeles nipped Washington, 4-3.

Warren Spahn did it again—simply to satisfy the sticklers and keep them from claiming he was lousing up the record book.

The 42-year-old Milwaukee southpaw settled a two-week long debate when he officially became the all-time left-handed strikeout king of the major leagues with a career total of 2,383.

Spahn achieved the milestone by striking out five batters in a 4-3 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers that represented his 14th triumph of the season and the 341st of his career.

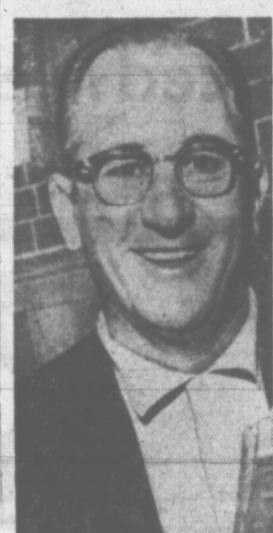

NO DOUBT NOW

In a manner of speaking, Spahn had been walking around with an asterisk since July 29 when he fanned five Cincinnati batters and brought his strikeout total to 2,375. Some said that total made him the new all-time left-handed strikeout king, but others said it didn't.

Rube Waddell, former southpaw for the Philadelphia A's, was the cause of the argument. Two separate record books listed Waddell's strikeout total at 2,375. Other books listed his total at 2,381.

Pony Leaguers Under Way — Carnarvons Meet Seattle

Victoria's Carnarvon League all-stars, Pony League champions of B.C., skip out on Carnarvon Park's manicured diamond at 6 tonight against Seattle Nationals in the second game of the regional baseball tournament.

Either Brian Lucas or Brian Brossard, hard-throwing right-handers, will be on the mound for Carnarvon.

In the other half of the draw, Richard, Wash., faced Oahu, Hawaii, in an afternoon game at 2 p.m.

Other games in the double loss elimination tourney are scheduled for 2 and 6 p.m. Thursday, 6 p.m. Friday, 2 p.m. (and 6 p.m. if necessary) Saturday. Winner goes to the divisional playdowns in National City, Cal. From there the survivor goes to the World Series at Washington, Pa.

The teams and officials were guests of the provincial government at a dinner Tuesday.

City Cyclists Enter Meet in Washington

Victoria Cycling Club members, planning to compete in a meet next Sunday at Redmonds, Wash., staged a tune-up contest last weekend.

Junior Bob Rogers and senior Ray Burley tied with the time of one hour, 41 minutes, and 13 seconds over three laps of an 11.3 mile course in North Saanich.

Heather Wilson won the women's division—two laps over the same course—with a time of 1:11.25.

Bowlers to Meet

General meeting of the Sunday Night Tenpin League will be held at Mayfair Lanes at 8 p.m. Sunday. President Dick Flood urges all members to attend.

O'MALLEY SPARES A DIME

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Owner Walter O'Malley of Los Angeles Dodgers is a man who can spare a dime. Ralph Haffley, 9, of Richmond, Minn., found this out when he visited here recently with his older brother Nick. Nick took Ralph to a National League game at Dodger Stadium, where Ralph found a dime in the parking lot. He sent the dime to O'Malley with a letter explaining that he felt it rightfully belonged to the Dodgers. O'Malley returned the dime the other day, passed on the bottom of an autographed pic-

WHY WAIT?

Apparently believing in doing his packing early and trying to squeeze big skates into small bag is Bob Buie, who has date in Montreal Aug. 24. The 17-year-old Victoria skater and Nanaimo's Bob Cherry are only B.C. boys invited by Montreal Canadiens to attend four-day hockey camp for junior prospects.

IN ICLL PLAYOFF

Shamrocks Face Heavy Artillery

The heavy artillery will be drawn up on New Westminster's front line when the Inter-City Lacrosse League semifinal playoff starts tonight at the Royal City.

That means the Victoria Shamrocks, who tackle Westminster in the best-of-seven series, will probably have to wage a defensive war if they are to survive the semifinal round and go on to meet Vancouver in the final.

Big man for the Rocks to stop, of course, is Jack Bienda, who has won the league scoring title each of the six years he has been able to play a full season.

Blonda put the finishing touches to his sixth crown at Memorial Arena Monday as Westminster trimmed the Rocks 14-7 in the final league game.

He collected a goal and an assist to wind up with 105 points on 51 goals and 54 assists, 11 ahead of runner-up John Ferguson of Nanaimo.

A possible Westminster series hero is Paul Parnell, who scored eight times in his last two games to wind up with 47 goals and 69 points.

Leading Victoria sniper was Ron Jay, with 51 points on 34 goals and 17 assists. Second game of the semifinal will be at Memorial Arena Friday night.

Here are the unofficial totals of players with more than 45 points and all-Victoria scorers:

SHOOTING CHAMP

CAMP PERRY, Ohio (AP) — Air force reserve Major Arthur E. Cook of Adelphi, Md., made a perfect 1,600 score to win the prone metallic sight all-bore rifle championship here Tuesday.

He also had 127 shots in the X-ring in setting a national match record. The old mark was 1,599-128 in 1953 by Charles D. Whipple.

BATTLE JOLTS ...

DARWEN, England (AP) — When the cricket field turned into a battle ground, spectators stared in disbelief.

Lashing at each other in the middle were the West Indian fast bowler, Roy Gilchrist and batsman Lou Laza from Australia.

Laza bounced his bat off Gilchrist's forehead. Gilchrist swiped him back with a wooden stump, part of the wicket that bowlers have to hit.

The fracas occurred in a parts of the depositions of free match played Sunday when

... CRICKET FANS

Gilchrist turned out for Darwen's Lancashire League club and Laza played for a British Commonwealth team.

The West Indian—one of the world's speediest bowlers—sent down several short pitches. Laza ducked some and was hit by others before the fracas started.

In the pavilion later, the two shook hands over a pint of beer.

RCMP Ask Swiss Assistance To Identify Faceless Body

PORT SMITH, N.W.T. (CP)—RCMP here say they plan to ask the Swiss consulate in Vancouver to help them identify a faceless body found in Headless Valley. The body was found Aug.

6 near a smashed canoe at the foot of Nahanni River Falls in the valley.

Police said the body, its face and hair ripped off, had been there about two weeks.

Inspector J. B. Giroux, head of the RCMP detachment here, said information about the body is being sent to the Swiss consulate to check whether it is one of three Europeans who disappeared in the valley June 29. The three men, Fritz Weiss, man, 26, Wolfgang Mah-rucke, 25, and Martin Wut-rich, 21, planned to write articles about the valley for a Swiss newspaper.

Insp. Giroux said there is no definite connection between the three men and the body they found.

"But the body was found in the same area," he said, "and nobody has seen the three men."

"We have asked flyers and canoeists to watch for them and they haven't seen anything."

Scout Group Taking Route Of Explorers

COLD LAKE, Alta. (CP)—Eight Boy Scouts from West Vancouver and two of their leaders left here during the weekend by canoe to follow a 700-mile route used by explorers Alexander Mackenzie and David Thompson more than 150 years ago.

Their trip will follow wilderness rivers from Pierce Lake, about 24 miles east of this community some 150 miles northeast of Edmonton to Amisk Lake near Flin Flon, Man.

The boys plan to travel about 45 miles a day and expect to reach their destination about the end of the month. They are using 12-foot canoes, each carrying two persons and 130 pounds of food and supplies.

Led by Scout Master Malcolm Hickenton, 30, the boys expect to encounter about 125 rapids on their trip.

They will go east to the Waterhen River, north on the Beaver River to Lac La Crosse and north again to the Churchill River. From there they will follow the Churchill south to Denare Beach on Amisk Lake.

Pollution Charged

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Skyway Air Services of Langley and pilot Leslie Kerr will be tried Aug. 29 on four charges of water pollution under the Fisheries Act. The charge was laid by the Federal Department of Fisheries after thousands of young salmon were found dead in Shuswap Lakes.

BUT PROFUMO PANNED

Disc Drops Royal Satire

NEW YORK (CP)—A long-playing Peter Sellers record satirizing the Profumo affair and other features of British life goes on sale here Friday. But a planned sketch poking fun at the Royal Family won't be on it.

A spokesman for London Records Incorporated, subsidiary of British Decca Limited, said the sketch had been dropped because advance reports had caused a number of protests.

The record, entitled Foot Brannia, will be distributed in Canada by London Records of Canada Limited, Montreal, the spokesman stated. But he said it still has not been decided whether the record will be sold in Britain.

Besides Sellers, a British actor and comedian, the record features comedian-singer Anthony Newley, Newley's wife, actress Joan Collins, and Dan Massey, 29, son of Canadian-born actor Raymond Massey.

Massey played the part of Prince Philip in the deleted section, a takeoff on the incident in which Prince Charles was reported to have drunk a glass of cherry brandy in a Scottish pub.

Sellers who says that "only a prude could be offended" by the record, does a satire of Prime Minister Macmillan's report to the House of Commons on the Profumo matter.

At one point the prime minister, asked to give assurances that there has been no security leak, says:

"Operating in this country is one of the finest secret services in the world—it belongs to the Russians."

When the uproar subsides he adds proudly that they couldn't have possibly have done such a fine job without the help of the British secret service.

Men on Welfare Support Mayor's 'Leech Cleanup'

COURTENAY — Mayor William Moore of Courtenay said today many people on welfare are supporting his "no work, no welfare" campaign for able-bodied men.

"Only yesterday I received three phone calls from men on welfare who said they are ready to go to work on civic projects if employment is found for them," he said.

He said starting Thursday he won't sign any more welfare cheques for men who could work but won't.

"But the real test will be at the end of the month when the bulk of the welfare cheques are issued," he said. "Most cheques to be issued Thursday are for widows and payment of groceries."

The mayor took issue with Ray Rickinson, deputy minister of social welfare, who claimed Mr. Moore's plan isn't practical. "How can he say that when my plan has not been given a try?" he asked.

"To give you an example of what is going on we gave a man a social assistance cheque for $66," he added. "Two hours later he was seen coming out of a beer parlor with a woman on his arm."

However, Mayor Moore said he had no quarrel with the views expressed by Maurice Corbell, financial secretary of Local 1-85 IWA.

'PITTANCE'

Mr. Corbell said he was not opposed to the principle of Mayor Moore's plan. But he disagreed with any suggestion that all people should be forced to "earn the miserable pittance that they receive on social assistance which is not sufficient to properly feed and clothe a person."

UNION RATES

Instead, he suggested councils continue to petition senior governments for work programs that would provide full-time employment at union rates of pay for all able and employable people.

"I'm not opposed to these views," said Mayor Moore. "My object is to make people work who won't work and draw social assistance. There are some people here who haven't found employment for five or six years. You can't tell me they tried to find jobs."

"I'm after the leaches," he added.

Switch Discussed

On Ferry Terminal

VANCOUVER (CP)—The West Vancouver Council Tuesday held a closed meeting on a proposal to switch the British Columbia government ferry terminal at Horseshoe Bay to another venue. The meeting followed protests over dangerous conditions in the bay, which is popular with small boat operators.

OUTDOOR WASH-UP before breakfast brought three Canadian boy scouts together at Bay of Marathon, Greece, where 14,000 are attending 11th annual world jamboree. Shown are Colin Tassin, Duncan; John Maskell, Ottawa; and Wayne Lister, Victoria.

V.I. ROUNDUP

Hospital Name to Change

DUNCAN — A new name is expected to be chosen for the $3,250,000 hospital which will replace King's Daughters Hospital here.

The name change is expected because other districts, such as Ladysmith, Chemainus and Lake Cowichan are contributing towards construction costs.

The hospital board is seriously considering naming it the Cowichan Valley Hospital. But some people feel it should be named after some legendary woodsman as a memorial to loggers who have been killed in this area.

Over half the population in Duncan and Cowichan district is directly or indirectly dependent on the logging industry.

The present hospital was named after King's Daughters and Sons, a semi-religious and charitable organization which promoted the first institution of its kind in the district.

Plans for the new hospital have been completed and are being double-checked before submission to the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

COURTENAY — A Victoria architect and school trustees here are concerned over substandard workmanship in the Balmoral School being built by a Victoria contractor, Herb Bate.

The trustees and the architects, Wade, Stockhill and Armour will seek to have the faults remedied. The architects feel the trouble is the responsibility of employees rather than the contractor, whose earlier work the architects praised.

TOFINO — Elk are back in the Bedwell River area, near Tofino, for the first time in 30 years.

The animals were sighted by prospectors, miners and loggers. They are believed to be part of the Butte Lake herd.

Victoria — My Lady, Ireland; Aralitz, U.S.A.; Arthur Stove, U.S.; Rodsley, France; George D. Gratsos, Puerto Rico.

Crofton — Blue Shark, pulp, Australia.

Harmac — Hoyanger, pulp, Europe.

Esquimalt — W. R. Lundgren (in drydock).

Nanaimo — Kolbjorg, South Africa; Leersum, U.K.

OCEAN MAILS

(Closing dates at Vancouver): Aug. 17 — Philippine Corregidor, Japan, Philippines.

New Bonanza Due for Anglers But Nothing Fishy About It

A scientific Japanese project, with strong promotional overtones, is going to provide some lucky V.I. fishermen and beachcombers with free, self-winding wrist watches.

The bonanza will come some time next summer when 130 small yellow buoys, with waterproof watches attached to their underside, start bobbing into coastal waters.

It's not exactly "finders-keepers" but anyone who does find a watch-laden buoy can send an enclosed form and the watch to the Citizen Watch Company of Japan and receive a sparkling new timepiece in exchange.

The unusual project, its promoters say, is being carried out for three reasons: to study the ocean currents, especially the Japanese current; to test the performance of the company's waterproof watches, and to promote friendship between Japanese, Canadian and U.S. young people.

The eight-inch diameter buoys, dropped in Japanese waters in June and July, will contain letters written by young people of various nationalities in Japan.

The watches are called the "Citizen Jet Auto-Dealer Parawater 17-jewel automatic."

Their self-winding system is so sensitive to motion that the action of the waves will automatically wind them.

The project is being promoted by two Japanese newspapers and the Tokyo University of Fisheries.

Many of the buoys are expected to find their way to Long Beach, Estevan and other areas on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Balls off Japanese nets which drift to Vancouver Island from time to time, are usually picked up in these areas. They are said to take a year or slightly more to make the crossing.

Maps Don't Lie FOR LANGFORD

—Sooke Park Is Really There

Sooke Mountain Park, believed by some Sooke residents to have been sold, still belongs to the government but the public won't be able to use it for many years.

The park is shown on provincial government maps, but there is no access to it because the park is surrounded by private property.

Residents of the Sooke area have been complaining because tourists ask for directions to get to the park, which as far as the residents are concerned does not exist.

Tourists think either the natives are ignorant or the maps are lying, they say.

A number of Sooke residents thought the park was sold a few years ago.

An official of the recreation and conservation branch said today the mature timber along the Shields Lake waterfront was sold in exchange for valuable park land elsewhere.

He said the park would likely be developed after the timber had grown back. He also said that it was hoped that the department could obtain land all around Shields Lake to include it in the park.

He added, however, that Sooke Mountain Park would not be developed until after the Matheson Lake park had been opened up, and said that there are other jobs that have priority.

Gov't Still Studying Planning Commission

Creation of an advisory planning commission to control the haphazard sprawl of suburban Langford is still under consideration by the provincial department of municipal affairs.

Deputy minister J. E. Brown said today he is not in a position to tell what progress is being made.

"I have not discussed it with the minister for some time," he said, referring to Municipal Affairs Minister W. D. Black, who is on holiday.

DELAY RAPPED

The government came under fire Tuesday when Sooke School Board chairman John S. Williams, of Glen Lake, complained of delay in appointment of commission members.

The advisory body should be named, or the government should state reasons for not doing so, he said.

It is nearly two years since the government-supported public meeting at Belmont High School in November, 1961, when the needs of the community were outlined.

The province had already taken the initiative by declaring Langford a community planning area that should have local advisory control.

"There are many responsible people in the district who are concerned with the haphazard development and sub-standard building and who are quite willing to serve on a planning board," Mr. Williams said.

BOY, 15, CONFESSES TO LONG CRIME WAVE

WINNIPEG (CP) — Police said a 15-year-old boy caught during a break-in attempt has confessed to 81 offences ranging from theft to arson. The boy has been turned over to juvenile authorities for action. He was captured Friday in a Winnipeg apartment when the tenants returned home to find him inside. Under questioning, the boy told police he was responsible for 30 thefts from automobiles, 25 from houses, two from the mails and 19 more from stores, churches and other premises. He also admitted to setting five fires. His crime wave began in the fall of 1961.

IN HIGHER EDUCATION

Plenty of 'Room' For Federal Aid

National security is a factor demanding greater federal government spending on Canadian universities, Education Minister Leslie Peterson said today.

ROGER TEILLET
... "best for all"

Vet Pensions Under Study Says Minister

Veterans Affairs Minister Roger Teillet said Tuesday his department is studying the impact of a proposed $10 old age pension increase on veterans' allowance ceilings. Under present legislation, the pension increase would be offset by a cut in the allowance collected by some 38,000 veterans because it would boost them over the ceiling on total income allowed.

BEST FOR ALL

"We have to take a good hard look at the situation before we can come up with conclusions we think will be best for all veterans across the country," Mr. Teillet said.

Among questions to be decided would be whether the OAP pension boost should be exempted from calculations of a veteran's income—as was done last time the pension rose—or boost the allowable income ceiling or do nothing.

"We are not contemplating any change at the moment—just studying the situation," he said.

GOOD CARE

Mr. Teillet visited the DVA Hospital here as part of an inspection tour across the country. "I am very impressed and pleased with the quality of medical care I find is available to veterans across the field," he said. "The standards are very high and in some departments our hospitals lead the field."

He said no conclusions have been reached yet in a study touched off by a Glassco Commission recommendation that DVA hospitals should be turned over to local administration.

SPECIAL CASES

Mr. Teillet conceded that projected advances in pensions and hospitalization for the general public may some day influence administration of these benefits within the department but not in the foreseeable future.

"For the foreseeable future we must consider, in my view, the fact that veterans are still entitled to some special attention. I can see no change in that principle."

"They are a special category and deserve special treatment."

Appeal to K By Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson has urged Premier Khrushchev to work towards a comprehensive and controlled reduction of armaments as a solemn obligation. Mr. Pearson released the text of a letter he sent the Russian premier when Russia, the United States and the United Kingdom signed their limited nuclear test ban agreement.

The agreement, he said, can be regarded as only a first step and negotiations should continue to broaden the treaty to include the cessation of underground tests.

"Even an acceptable final agreement on the discontinuance of all nuclear weapons tests would itself be no more than a starting point," Mr. Pearson told Mr. Khrushchev.

"The future status of our country will be judged by its education policies and the graduates it produces," Mr. Peterson said in an interview.

The minister was commenting on a recommendation of the Canadian Universities Foundation for a national policy on university spending. Canada spends too little on higher education, the Foundation says.

"I think there is room in the field for national policies to be implemented," Mr. Peterson said.

GO AFIELD

He pointed out that undergraduates cross provincial boundaries in order to specialize, graduates seek special facilities at particular universities or go afieid to get jobs after graduation.

"The provinces, with limited tax revenues, provide the funds for educating a child for 12 years of his life before his admission to university."

"It would seem reasonable for the national government to assume major responsibility for financing the higher education," Mr. Peterson said.

At the same time, Mr. Peterson defended provincial spending on higher education.

Referring to protests voiced last week by resigning University of B.C. philosophy professor Avrum Stroll—that B.C. pinches the university dollar—the minister said:

"I don't suppose any institution is ever completely happy about the amount of money they are provided."

NOT AUTOMATIC

"Just because university costs have been rising so rapidly, there is no reason why grants should go up automatically at all institutions."

"I admire any board of governors which does its utmost to get value for every dollar they spend. There is bound to be some conflict between employer and employee in this field as in all other fields."

"It is wishful thinking to say this could be eliminated."

"We have loyal people on the staffs, and if they are not getting as much as they want, the fact remains they are getting substantially more today than they were a few years ago."

Pending Suit Delays Ouster Of Dictator

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Venezuelan ex-dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez, who has fought four years against extradition to his homeland, gained a delay Tuesday as a plane stood by to whisk him away.

The exiled president, wanted in Venezuela for alleged embezzlement of $13,000,000 while in office, won his stay because of a paternity suit that he fought.

Perez Jimenez remained in jail under federal custody while possibly final legal battles were fought after State Secretary Dean Rusk's decision to let Venezuela try him. He has been in jail since December 12.

Delaying Perez Jimenez' extradition was a decision by Dade County Circuit Court Judge Robert Anderson to stay an order in the paternity action until possible appeals court review. The appeals court is on vacation. County Attorney Darrey Davis said the hearing probably would not be held before Friday.

Libel Suit Against Mine, Mill Leaders

VANCOUVER (CP)—President Harvey Murphy and Secretary Al King of the Western branch of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) are facing libel charges in connection with statements issued in a news bulletin May 31.

The suit has been launched by Pat O'Neal, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor (CLC), and Penrod Basun, international representative of the United Steel Workers of America (CLC). No date has been fixed for the hearing.

Tolmie's Diaries Present Intriguing Log of B.C.'s Raw Frontier Days

PHYSICIAN AND FUR TRADER, the journal of William Fraser Tolmie. Vancouver: The Mitchell Press. Illustrated. 413 pages. $9.75.

By STUART KEATE

A literary event of major importance to Northwest historians and anthropologists occurred today with publication of the diaries of William Fraser Tolmie, pioneer surgeon and Hudson's Bay fur trader.

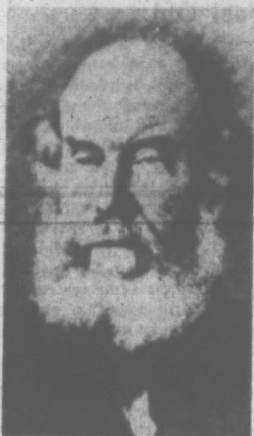

A prized possession of the Tolmie family for more than 120 years, the diary has been published by Howard Mitchell of Vancouver, at the instigation of industrialist H. R. MacMillan and with the consent of the late Mrs. L. R. Andrews (Jean Tolmie), daughter of the former premier (1928-1933) of British Columbia.

Ironically, the book reached the public just a few weeks after the original Tolmie family home in Victoria, "Cloverdale," fell before the wrecker's axe, despite valiant efforts by local groups to preserve the old home as an historical site.

The diary covers the period 1830-1842, when the 20-year-old Tolmie, recently graduated from Glasgow University, sailed on the H.B. Co. barque Ganymede on his way to Fort Vancouver (now in Oregon) via the Sandwich Islands, and thence on to Fort Nisqually, Elliott Bay (now Seattle) and Fort McLoughlin.

The young Dr. Tolmie was a man of many talents—a keen observer, an expert ture and religion, a handy man with a gun, and a strong swimmer.

These disparate qualities stood him in good stead in the raw frontier country of 130 years ago. Imposed on a wilderness country, they resulted in an intriguing log which was never intended for publication but which must surely prove to be an invaluable source-work of British Columbians.

The doughty Scots doctor made a unique impact on this new frontier. For instance:

● He was the first medical doctor to practice in what is now the province of B.C., if one excepts Dr. James McKay, who was at Nootka Sound for a year in 1786;

● He was the first white man to make an approach to Mount Rainier, leading a small band of Indians as far as they would go without incurring the wrath of the "Snow Gods";

● He introduced pure-bred livestock to Vancouver Island;

● He was the first to report the existence of coal on Vancouver Island;

● He was the first doctor to describe in detail a medical case in the Pacific Northwest;

● He was the first white man to make anthropological and language studies of coast Salish and Kwakwaka'wakw Indians of Washington and B.C.;

● He was the first to import from Hawaii (which he visited after sailing around the Horn) dahlia seeds, acacia trees, and strawberries;

● He organized the first lending library and some of the first educational laws in the West;

● He was the first man to build a stone house in the new colony of Vancouver Island—the same "Cloverdale" which was destroyed here just a few weeks ago. As pater-familias, Dr. Tolmie sired a notable brood, of whom the best-known today is Dr. Simon Fraser Tolmie, youngest son, and former premier of B.C. This Dr. Tolmie, who was born in the Confederation year of 1867, represented Victoria as a Tory MP from 1917 to 1923, resigning his seat at Ottawa to lead the Tories to victory provincially in the latter year.

One of the highlights of the new book is the inclusion, as an appendix, of a speech given to the B.C. Historical Society by the recently-defuncted premier in 1934, reminiscing about his father. If it reveals the pioneer surgeon and fur trader as a pious and rather stern figure, who used to rouse his sons at 5:20 a.m. daily for lessons in Euclid, Algebra, Latin, French and Greek, it also reveals the former premier as a man of both warmth and wit, whose popularity at the polls is implicit in his speech.

Both Mr. MacMillan and Mr. Mitchell deserve credit for bringing the Tolmie diaries to public attention—Mr. MacMillan for ferreting them out of the remotest reaches of the public Archives, and Mr. Mitchell for getting them between hard covers. The book is priced at $9.75 but will be worth a lot more to students of the early history of this area.

DESTROYER GETS NEW BOARDER

HMCS Assiniboine, the first Canadian destroyer to be equipped with a helicopter landing deck and hangar, took aboard her first 'chopper in Juan de Fuca Strait this week.

The Assiniboine is on work-ups following her $2,500,000 conversion by Victoria Machinery Depot Ltd.

Photos show (above) 'chopper approaching stern of the destroyer, whose profile was drastically altered by the hangar deck which can be seen just astern of the twin side-by-side funnels.

PILOT VIEW

At right is the view the pilot sees as he approaches—the landing deck and forward of it, with doors open, the hangar. At left the helicopter has settled down on the deck to finish the first destroyer landing.

Six other St. Laurent class destroyers of the Second Canadian Escort Squadron, based at Esquimalt will be equipped with helicopter facilities. They are also to get variable depth sonar.

The helicopters are designed to widen the range of hunting and striking power; the sonar to give more accuracy by penetrating thermal layers.

ATLANTIC-BOUND

The Assiniboine is continuing work-ups today, Thursday and Friday, in the area between Race Rocks and Discovery Island. She has been assigned to the Atlantic Command, and is scheduled to leave about the middle of September.

Commanding officer is Cmdr. Walter S. Blandy, native-born Victorian whose family has been well-known here for many years.

Male Skaters Try to Regain Lost Prestige

Are male skaters going to bow to the so-called weaker sex for a second successive year?

The answer comes up Thursday night at Esquimalt Sports Centre when the men pull on roller skates and get in on the 50-mile fad.

Distaff skaters had their turn Tuesday night and Sharon Pineau wheeled through 500 laps, estimated by Sports Centre manager Joe Iannarelli as 50 miles, in two hours, 56 minutes, 15 seconds.

GOOD MARGIN

Victory for Sharon, who finished with a comfortable margin over runner-up Roberta Booth and Pam Fortye, wasn't unexpected.

Last year, when Iannarelli staged a straight endurance contest for both male and female roller-skaters, Sharon travelled the longest and strongest. She beat all her rivals as she kept going for 18½ hours.

The men start their attempt to regain prestige by beating her 50-mile time at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Jailed Two Months

Terence Hall of Langford was sentenced to two months jail in Colwood magistrate's court this morning when he was convicted of assault.

He struck another man in the face. The assault arose out of a family dispute.

Negligence Found In Highway Fatality

A coroner's jury found today that Mrs. Maggie Bell, 78, of 2348 Cadboro Bay Road, died from injuries brought about through "the negligence of the driver of the car in which she was riding."

Driver of the car, which overturned after a collision on the Malahat on Sunday, Aug. 4, was James Reginald Wilson, 55, of 2951 Glasgow.

Mrs. Bell died in Royal Jubilee Hospital last Sunday from multiple injuries. She never regained consciousness after the accident.

The six-man jury returned its verdict of negligence at 12:30 p.m. today following a two-and-a-half-hour inquest in McCall's funeral parlors.

HIGHWAY NARROWS

Evidence showed that the accident occurred on the Malahat about a mile south of Mill Bay at a point where the Trans-Canada Highway narrows from a two-lane section into a one-lane section.

A Vauxhall car driven by Mr. Wilson, and a Chevrolet sedan driven by Raymond Lawrence Greenwood, were both travelling south towards Victoria when the impact occurred.

Mr. Wilson's car overtook the Greenwood car on the right-hand side near the point where the two-lane section narrowed into one lane, touched the bumper of the Greenwood car, spun around, careened across the highway and overturned in a ditch.

Mrs. Bell and Mrs. Wilson were dragged from underneath the car. Mr. Wilson crawled out from the upturned driver's seat.

OATH REFUSED

Mr. Wilson, a member of the Christadelphian Church, claimed protection under the B.C. Evidence Act in giving testimony. He refused to take an oath on the Bible because of religious convictions but promised to give a true account of what occurred.

He said he was returning from a meeting at the Christadelphian Church at Nanaimo with his wife and Mrs. Bell. All were members of the Christadelphian Church.

Mr. Wilson said he was driving up the Mill Bay Hill on the right lane of a two-lane highway.

"The car in front was rather slow, so I pulled out and passed another car travelling in the left-hand lane. Without any warning or signal, it came over towards the right lane. I tried to miss it, but lost control."

Mr. Wilson said after his car struck the Greenwood car, it careened across the road and overturned.

Mr. Wilson said he learned to drive in England in 1920 and had been driving ever since. Answering questions from the jury, he said he had consumed no alcohol.

He added that the driver of a third car, (Stuart Campbell, 317 Goldstream), who saw the accident from behind, told him afterwards:

"You did a wonderful piece of driving in missing those other cars."

STAYED AT SCENE

Mr. Wilson said Mr. Campbell "seemed to impute the blame to the driver of the other car involved."

RCMP constable Hugh Boyer said it was at first thought that a hit-and-run car was involved. Later it was found that the other car (driven by Greenwood) had remained at the scene of the accident all the time.

LONELY BOY

Let's Load Postman For Keith

Keith Barker is in isolation—complete isolation.

The Campbell River nine-year-old, badly burned by exploding gasoline five months ago, lies face down on a bed in St. Joseph's Hospital.

He is forbidden any visitors but his parents, Bill and Nancy Barker, who come down once a week to visit him.

But with their savings gone and their debts mounting, the Barkers can't make it every weekend.

LETTER A DAY

They write letters—"I haven't missed a day since he went in," says Mrs. Barker—but it's no substitute for a visit.

Keith's back was burned in the explosion, caused by gasoline dumped on a rubbish fire, and he faces another month or two of skin grafts.

His room is isolated, with only hospital personnel and his family allowed in, because of the risk of infection of his unbandaged burns.

Keith had a companion in his room: until recently, eight-year-old Jimmy Morgan, burned in the same accident, but Jimmy has gone home now, and Keith is so lonely he sometimes cries for long periods.

"He loves to get letters," his mother said in a telephone interview from Campbell River.

STAY TWO DAYS

The Barkers will be down to see their son Friday morning, and will stay two days "if the pay cheque holds out," says Mrs. Barker.

"All the funds we saved are gone, and we have house payments to make," she says. "We're just praying that the car will hold together."

Mr. Barker is a splitterman in a Campbell River lumber mill.

CONDITION GOOD

There are three other children at home, and "they've been terrific about this. They have given up their whole summer," Keith's condition is listed as "good" by the hospital.

His mother thinks it would be a whole lot better if his loneliness could be relieved by letters.

A letter addressed to him care of St. Joseph's Hospital will reach him—in more ways than one.

Foul Play Suspected As Man Goes Missing

RCMP suspect foul play in the disappearance of an elderly commercial fisherman from his home on the north end of Galiano Island, 45 miles north of Victoria.

Police today called in Royal Canadian Navy divers to help in the search for Joseph George, about 80.

They said his isolated home gives every indication of a disturbance having taken place.

RCMP at Ganges, Salt Spring Island, received word of his disappearance Tuesday afternoon. After a preliminary investigation, S/Sgt. W. Murdoch and S/Sgt. R. D. Walters were sent to North Galiano from Victoria in a police boat.

S/Sgt. Walters is an identification expert. This morning Sgt. Jack Fletcher, of the Criminal Investigation Department, was flown to Galiano in an RCMP plane.

RCMP in Victoria said at noon today they have been out of touch with the investigators since early this morning. Apparently there is no question of Mr. George having gone missing in his boat.

He is believed to have been last seen sometime Monday. The area is sparsely populated and homes are widely scattered. North Galiano is a small fishing community of about 100 people.

Arthur Mayse on Vacation

Topics of the Day

Nigel Young of London, England, will speak on "The Coming Trade War" at a meeting of the Victoria branch, British Israel World Federation (Canada) in the Newstead Hall, 734 Fort Street, Monday at 8 p.m.

City road-building crews will begin work Monday extending Rose Street from Bay to the corner of Queens and Blanshard, an official said today.

Demolition of a house, fences and some other structures will be underway during the week with actual road clearing and grading expected to start the following week.

A young woman was attacked by a youth as she walked home in West Victoria Tuesday night but escaped unharmed.

Rose Karpuk, 25, of 3080 Earl Grey, got out of a car on Gorge Road at about 9:30 and was walking on Earl Grey when she was followed by a youth. When Miss Karpuk quickened her pace the youth walked faster too.

She turned to look at the person following her and he lunged at her. He didn't touch her. Miss Karpuk screamed and the prowler ran away.

She described him to Saanich police as being about 16 or 17 years old, wearing a light blue jacket and tan pants. She said he walked with a limp.

Ask The Times

Q. Calgary is reputed to be Canada's fastest-growing city. How does Victoria rank? G.J.

A. Victoria is Canada's fourth fastest-growing centre.

Q. Which of Canada's provinces was first to use public funds for school support? R.L.

A. New Brunswick. In 1892 the government there gave 10 pounds a year to any parish that would start a school.

Q. Two figures stand at the front edge of the roof of our Parliament Buildings. Could you please tell me who, or what they represent? V. L.

A. The figures represent "art" and "science."

Clothes That Suit Young Business Woman's Budget

By PENNY SAVER

Fall is in the air. At least, it's in the air one breathes in women's clothing stores. And there's no need to wait for a more complete stock or for sale prices in the store I was in today. They make a habit of carrying only two of the same garment at the most, and then in different colors and sizes, and their prices are always aimed at the budget woman who likes good quality but can't afford to go sky high.

For instance, the shirtmaker style dress that caught my eye today is $29.95. But consider that it is made of a lovely soft wool in a waffle knit, that it is completely lined to prevent "sag and bag," that it comes in cranberry red—the newest shade for fall, that the buttons on front and cuffs of long sleeves are of self fabric—and you'll agree it is well worth that price.

Equally suitable as an afternoon dress is a sleeveless dress with A-line skirt in teal blue, faintly speckled with black. It is made from hopsacking cloth that just won't hold creases. Neck is set off with a nylon jersey scarf in complementing blue print. And price of this one is just $19.95.

Both are examples of store's stock, not exceptions.

If you're in the market for a new wool suit, I'd suggest you look here, too.

They have an exclusive on-a suit that can be extended to a six-piece weekend outfit you'll feel smart in every day.

It comes in two colors—a green and a reddish shade. Skirts at $14.95 and slims at $16.95 are in solid shade. Jacket ($19.95) is in matching plaid.

Made in Toronto, items are all in an imported European wool and completely lined. Skirt has the "peg" shape (narrower at hem) that makes for a slim, slim line.

Before long this store will also have all-round pleated skirt, blouses to match and different style of top to add to the set.

Call Penny at 382-3131 if these budget-prices with quality appeal to you (and you want to know where it is!)

DEAR ABBY...

For the Birds!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column recently from a woman who thought that the practice of parakeets flying over the dinner table at mealtime was unsanitary. And you agreed with her! Abby, I thought you were supposed to be a pretty hep gal. Haven't you ever heard of 'Parakeet Diapers'? They are made of washable jersey and come in three sizes. Small, medium and large. They will not hamper birds in flight and are designed with a comfortable halter neck so the birds can't lose them. This is no gag, and I don't sell them. But I've bought them.

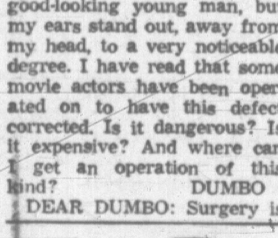

FRED IN ALBANY

DEAR FRED: Now I've heard everything! I don't sell them either, but I'll bet a lot of readers would like to know who does.

DEAR ABBY: This may not seem very important to you, but I want to know how to follow through on something that has bothered me for a long time. I am considered a good-looking young man, but my ears stand out, away from my head, to a very noticeable degree. I have read that some movie actors have been operated on to have this defect corrected. Is it dangerous? Is it expensive? And where can I get an operation of this kind?

DUMBO

DEAR DUMBO: Surgery is

DEAR DUMBO: Surgery is always "dangerous" unless performed by an expert. I don't know how "expensive" it is, but you can get all the information you want by asking your family doctor to refer you to a plastic surgeon.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has always been quite well-to-do. Our daughter wanted to marry a 27-year-old man of whom we did not approve. She was too young to marry without our consent, and we forbade her to do so. The day she became of age they were married in a civic ceremony. We told her we never wanted to see her again. We got our wish. It has been nine years since we have seen her. And we have never seen our two grandchildren. We never realized that in making such a threat we would be the ones to pay. Please print this for parents who might be tempted to keep apart two people who really love each other.

SORRY

DEAR SORRY: Are you saying that parents should set aside their better judgment when an under-age daughter announces that she wants to marry? True, you shouldn't have said you never wanted to see her again. That was your mistake, not forbidding your daughter to marry a man of whom you disapproved. Quit punishing yourself. Make an effort to see your daughter. One of these days she'll realize that she is being foolish, too.

Tell your troubles to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send one dollar to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif., for Abby's new booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Alan Graham

Building an empire is a wonderfully simple feat, particularly if the architect is Alan Graham with his sure knowledge of good, flattering lines. With only four basic pieces in the pattern, he has designed a dress with a clever cut, so that the high, above-waistline drape is one with the body. It comes from the side seams, is pulled into a centre knot to set off the bosom and accent the soft folds of the skirt. Choose silk or rayon crepe, sheer wool, shantung, brocade or metallics, pliable cottons. To select your correct size, use Spadea's exclusive ready-to-wear size chart.

What Can Be Done About Skirt Pleats—Which Tear?

"Dear Eunice Farmer: 'No matter what I do to a pleat in the back of my skirts, they always rip out or tear. Can anything be done about this?' Mrs. C. A."

Dear Mrs. C. A.: Perhaps the pleat should be slightly longer if you are exceptionally active. One helpful suggestion would be to place a piece of hem tape where the stitching will end at the beginning of your pleat. As you stitch the seam, you will stitch through the tape as well just at the point where you have the extra strain. This will probably keep the skirt from tearing in most cases.

YOUR SEWING GLOSSARY: Accordion-pleating. These pleats do not lie flat, but stand out like an accordion. This type of pleating is usually done commercially, especially when small pleats are desired.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Aging Doesn't Mean You Must Act and Feel Old

A national medical association's committee on aging has come up with some very cheering news. Surveys and studies have shown that aging need not necessarily bring infirmities. It is possible for a healthy man or woman in later years to be just as alert and active than one who is years younger. Individuals vary greatly in these matters.

And guess what? Studies have indicated that mental capacities do not decline just because of years. Older people are good learners. The conclusion that stress is preferable to inactivity and boredom is clear-cut. This committee urges employers to keep persons on the payroll who are able to work and want to work, regardless of age and to employ new workers who are capable regardless of their age.

The other day I read an interesting article in "Geriatrics" magazine. It emphasized that most people just take it for granted that their mental powers will decrease with age. For this reason many older persons have talents and capabilities of which they are unaware. They allow them to lie dormant. It warns, however, that if a person is to be alert and capable in later years he must indulge in intellectual pursuits during the preceding years. That after we reach 40 we should learn a new language every decade. I think that's a wonderful idea!

The article spotlights the importance of preparing for vibrant older years. Naturally, part of the time during younger years must be spent in making a living. He advises, though that habitually, we spend some time in physical activity, creative activity and intellectual activity.

With life expectancy so greatly lengthened, it is imperative that we prepare so that these extra years may be a bonus rather than a bore.

If you would like to have my free leaflet "Pep" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet number 56 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Wishing Well

Gifts were presented in a wishing well at a recent shower held in the Cadboro Bay home of Miss Jacqueline Nichols in honor of bride-elect, Miss Sharon Whellams. Guests were Mrs. Ray Whellams and Ruth, Mrs. R. Price and Susan, Mrs. R. Bowering, Mrs. Michael Coldren, Mrs. H. Olden, Mrs. Hugh Nichols and the Misses Evelyn Bowering, Zita Heed, Rosemary Hamilton and Florence Thompson.

Honored

Bride-elect, Miss Renee Fletcher, and mother, Mrs. L. Fletcher, were presented with corsages of pink carnations and sweet peas at a surprise shower in the Oakland Avenue home of Mrs. M. G. Wheeler. Pink and white streamers and wedding bells decorated the chair for the guest of honor. Invited guests were Mrs. John Lindsay, Mrs. M. Perrillet, Mrs. James Lindsay, Mrs. E. C. Chaisson, Mrs. R. Fletcher, Mrs. L. Liesch, Mrs. J. James, Mrs. A. Reimer, Mrs. J. Henderson, Mrs. H. Godfrey, and the Misses Joan Turner, Kathy Green, Cheryl James and Diane Reimer.

Overseas

England continues to draw visitors from Victoria during the summer months. In London last week the following signed the register at British Columbia House: Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Swindell, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hardie, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Stockdill, with Tom and Jim, Dr. and Mrs. W. E. M. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Miller with David and Betsy, Mrs. P. A. Gibbs, Mrs. Lisa Dempster, Mrs. Hilda McFarlane, Mrs. E. G. Booth, Mrs. J. L. Heald, Mrs. Mabel Eley, with the Misses Evelyn and Doris Eley, Mr. E. L. McMurdo and John, Mr. Ian Duncan, Mr. Gordon W. Ross, Mr. W. G. Stone, and the Misses W. D. Hayton, Gail Byers, Valerie Macphail and Eleanor M. Hamilton. Other Vancouver Island residents enjoying a holiday abroad are Mrs. W. E. Haskins, Cowichan Bay, and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Reynolds of Courtenay.

Set Date

Lt.-Cmdr. and Mrs. J. L. D. Arnold, 901 Island Road, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Susan Elizabeth, to Mr. Kevin James Rooney, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan James Rooney, 4435 Shelbourne Street. The wedding will take place Sept. 11 at 2 p.m. in St. Chad's Anglican Church at Gordon Head. Rev. G. Walker will officiate.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Gay, 4918 Prospect Avenue, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Anita Lynn, to Mr. Hugh Anthony Robertson, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Robertson, 1750 St. Ann Street. The wedding will take place on Friday, August 30, in Metropolitan United Church. (Photo by Gibson's Studio.)

Designer Shows Two Faces

NEW YORK (AP) — There were two sides to the fashion story James Galanos presented Monday, depending on the way the models were facing.

The California designer, last American couturier to present fall fashions to buyers and the press, was generally agreed that women should have wide, sloping shoulders and narrow skirts.

But now and then he did a turnabout, treating fronts like backs and vice versa.

Sometimes the face view was a subtly-carved coat, but in retreat the tunic or tiered back suggested the model was wearing a two or three-piece suit.

Coat dresses appeared to be put on backwards, with a double row of buttons marching down the back and scarf ties knotted at the napes. And cocktail dresses were simple and sweet on one side, front or back and bare and daring on the other.

The closest a Galanos model came to wearing boots was a pair of white satin booties, worn with a long-sleeved, white baby snooks-type dress.

Actually, the Philadelphia-born couturier chose to keep his thin, pallid manikins ladylike, coming no nearer to current Franco-American sportive look than some modest turtlenecks and ascot scarves that filled in open-neck suits or were pinned down to suit blouses.

FEATHERS ROAR BACK—Ladies who like feathers will be amused at the beaded, bias-cut roaring '20's dresses fluttering with clusters of plumes. Plume-colored feathers also fanned under opulent brocade tunic dresses and coats the same length. And cock feathers curled over bare shoulders, cascaded down the side and around the floor-length hemline of a shimmering metallic gown.

Some girls will undoubtedly avoid those dinner gowns with tiny triangles of bareness under the bosoms.

Women who like to be seen will love his awning-striped jackets and long skirts of velvet or silk worn by the models.

Women who want freer movement undoubtedly will avoid his clinking, bejeweled gowns with skirts so slim that walking is difficult.

But if they just want to stand there and look beautiful they will probably buy them.

These same women will be customers for the Russian sable pyjamas and the floor-length Russian sable bathrobe coat.

The costs of both are said to be astronomical.

Vows in Gordon United Church

Pink gladioli and white chrysanthemums decorated Gordon United Church, View Royal, for the recent ceremony which united Donna Joy Chalke and Richard Thomas Allan. Rev. W. Z. van Druten officiated.

Bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Chalke of View Royal. Groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. T. Allan of New Denver, B.C.

T. Robertson was organist and played "Ave Maria" during signing of the register.

The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Floor-length bridal gown of white nylon tulle over taffeta was styled with a wide scoop neckline and lily point sleeves. The skirt was slightly belled and flared to a soft train. Both bodice and skirt were embroidered with Alencon lace sprays. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses and stephanotis. Her only jewelry was a pearl drop necklace, gift of the groom.

Maid of honor was Miss Valerie Pearson, the bride's sister, Miss Anne Chalke and the groom's sister, Miss Karen Allan, were junior bridesmaids.

All wore ballerina-length dresses of floral nylon over pink taffeta. They carried cascade bouquets of white gladioli and white feathered carnations.

Little Barbara Greenidge, the flower girl, wore a pink tulle sash with a floral nylon cummerbund. She carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations centred with a pink rose.

Brother of the groom, Donald Ray, was best man while Donald Nickason and Greg Biggs ushered guests to pews marked with white gladioli and pink ribbon.

E. O. Pearson proposed the toast to the bride at a reception in Holyrood House. Pink roses decorated the bride's table and pink and white gladioli were arranged in the room.

Leaving for a honeymoon trip to the United States the bride wore a blue Swiss cotton print dress, a blue light wool coat, white accessories and blue hat.

The young couple will make their home in Chilliwack, where they both have teaching positions for the coming school year.

Princess Now a Teen-Ager

LONDON (UPI) — Blonde Princess Anne turns a big corner tomorrow: She becomes a teen-ager.

The blue-eyed daughter of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip, still a tomboy but showing signs of growing up, will celebrate her 18th birthday.

She also will be the first daughter of a British sovereign to deviate from the tradition of tutors and go to school.

One mark of tomorrow's birthday occasion will be an increase in Anne's weekly pocket allowance from 5 shillings (70 cents) to 10 shillings.

The birthday will be observed with family celebrations.

The next important date in Princess Anne's book is Sept. 20, when she dons the usual English school uniform of tunic and blouse and goes off to Benenden Girls Boarding School in Kent, about 50 miles from London.

PIONEER 96 TODAY

A descendant of one of the earliest settlers on Salt Spring Island, Mrs. Marie A. Wallace is celebrating her 96th birthday today.

Mrs. Wallace was born the year of Confederation on a Salt Spring farm, now known as Fruitvale.

Her father, Louis Stark, came to Salt Spring Island in 1859 from San Francisco along with other Negro settlers who had recently gained their freedom. They settled on property around St. Mary Lake which had been granted to them by Governor James Douglas.

Mrs. Wallace was married on Salt Spring Island and has continued to live there.

She has one son and two daughters, Oscar Wallace, Mrs. Robert (Myrtle) Holloman and Mrs. Sydney (Ethel) Clabourne, who all live on Salt Spring.

Mrs. Wallace now lives with Mrs. Holloman on Walker Hook Road. She was recently entertained by her two daughters at a party at the home of Mrs. C. J. Zenkie on Rainbow Road.

Chanel Named A 'Fashion Immortal'

LONDON, Eng. — The international jury of the Sunday Times fashion awards has made its choice.

For the first Fashion Immortal, the jurors unanimously voted for Gabrielle Chanel, "unique in her enduring contribution to fashion, her world-wide impact on what women all over the world wear."

The French Award goes to Pierre Cardin, "always original and one of the few designers outside the Balenciaga sphere of influence."

The American Award goes to Norman Norell "who has brought back a much needed elegance."

The British Award goes to Mary Quant "who has jolted England out of its clothes conventions."

In addition to these honors, special awards have been given to Emilio Pucci "who has changed the look of open air clothes," and to Alexandre "whose hairpieces have added a new dimension to fashion."

The presentation of the awards, which will be accompanied by a fashion showing of the winners' collections, will take place at the London Hilton Hotel on October 15 at 9:30 p.m.

The winners will be flown to London as the guests of the Sunday Times.

Peaches Shortcake Alaska is a rich biscuit dough topped with vanilla ice cream and fresh peach halves, and frosted generously with meringue. Only the tops of the peaches peek out from under the delicately browned snowcaps.

Glamorous, Easy to Make

Shortcake is one of many quick breads which takes few ingredients and little time to prepare. Most popular of these are baking powder biscuits and shortcake. Served plain or fancy they are always favored.

When the shortcake for the Peaches Alaska comes out of the oven it is allowed to cool before being transferred to a cutting board. It is the wooden board on the bottom and the meringue on top which act as insulation and keep the ice cream from melting during the browning of the meringue.

PEACHES SHORTCAKE ALASKA

Shortcake: 1/4 cup shortening, 2 1/2 cups sifted pastry flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 egg yolks, 1/2 cup milk (about).

Topping: 2 egg whites, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 pint vanilla ice cream, 8 peach halves.

Sift together dry ingredients for the shortcake. Cut the shortening into the flour with a pastry blender until the mixture is the consistency of corn meal. Separate eggs reserving whites for topping. Place egg yolks in a measuring cup. Add enough milk to measure 1/2 cup. Stir well. Add to dry ingredients and blend until a soft dough is formed. Turn onto a lightly floured board. Knead 10 times. Place in an 11 by 7 by 1 1/2 inch baking pan. Pat to fit the pan. Bake in a very hot oven (450 degrees F.) about 20 minutes. Remove from oven and cool. Beat 2 egg whites until frothy. Gradually add 3 tablespoons sugar and continue beating until stiff but not dry. Place cake on a wooden cutting board. Slice ice cream and place on top of shortcake. Arrange peach halves, cut side down over ice cream. Cover cake thoroughly with a thick coating of meringue, leaving only tops of peaches uncovered. Bake in a very hot oven (475 degrees F.) for 2 to 4 minutes, until meringue is delicately browned. Slip cake from board onto a platter. Slice and serve immediately. Yield: 8 servings.

FAVORITE BISCUITS

1/2 cup shortening, 2 1/2 cups sifted pastry flour, 2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup milk.

Cut shortening into flour which has been sifted with baking powder and salt, until the mixture is the consistency of corn meal. Make a well in dry ingredients, add milk and stir. Turn onto lightly floured board. Knead 6 times. Roll or pat to 1/2 inch thickness. Cut. Will make 14 small (2 inches in diameter) or 7 large (2 1/2 inches in diameter) biscuits. Place on baking sheet and bake in a very hot oven (450 degrees F.) for 12 to 15 minutes. Yield: 14 small or 7 large biscuits.

BUSY-BEE JUDY GETS WISH AS ANDY PICKS HER QUESTION

JUDY VESSEY Surprise

A wish has come true for Judy Vessey, 13, of 173 Egerton Avenue. She had been thinking about asking her mother for a World Book Encyclopedia when she received word today that she has won one for a question submitted to the Ask Andy feature in the Times. The question is: "Why do ocean turtles lay their eggs on land?" It's an interesting subject. The answer is in today's column. "I was certainly surprised to hear that I was a winner," she said. "I wanted an encyclopedia for my studies because there are lots of things I would like to know." Judy, a busy girl, is a good reader. Apart from reading the Times regularly, she subscribes to the National Geographic Magazine. Her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Clifford Vessey, 66 Wellington Street, also keep her supplied with many types of books. She has many other interests. She is a first-class swimmer, having won the senior Red Cross badge for swimming. She now plans to try for a much bigger award — the Royal Life Saving Society bronze medalion. She is also a fine drummer and plays in the Thunderbird Girls Drum Corp. Judy is a Girl Guide and a choir member in Jobs Daughters, Bethel 36, at Langford. She is a pupil at George Pringle Memorial School, and this year will be in Grade 8.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Peter Lawford and Sammy Davis Jr. have been roommates recently in the presidential suite at the Savoy-Hilton... though room-mate isn't quite the word, for the suite has four bedrooms. "Oh sure, but this is nothing new with us," Lawford said. "Sammy and I've been friends for years. "Sammy was nice enough to come here from Hollywood and make some trailers for my movie ('Johnny Cool'). He's gone on to Atlantic City to work at the Harlem Club and I just talked to him there. "How many times are you an uncle?" Lawford was asked. "Eighteen," he figured out. "I was in Hyannis Port for a weekend and it's quite a task keeping them straight. They say 'Hi, Peter,' and you say, 'Uh, Hi there.' You try to fake it." * * * Leonard Sillman, producer of the "New Faces" revues since 1934, has picked his "New Face" for August—it belongs to Gloria Bleezarde, who's done the Ed Sullivan show and the "New York Coloring Book" at Cafe Society. Sillman's going to undertake to make Gloria a star (he did pretty well with Tyrone Power, Henry Fonda, Imogene Coca and Van Johnson). And this column and this typewriter are going to help. Gloria's 21—she's no shapely little blonde sexpot—she's a comedienne often compared to Tammy Grimes. She comes from Wapping, Conn., and went to Southern Seminary at Buena Vista, Va., her grandparents, the Logans, come from Celina, O., and her dad and mother met at Defiance, O., College. An All-American girl! Her nickname is Cupcake. You'll be hearing more about Cupcake Bleezarde.

How's this for brilliant thinking? An upside-down World Series — between the N.Y. Mets and Washington Senators—with Richard Nixon throwing out the first ball, and Floyd Patterson relieving him if he's wild! Jimmy Dean suggests it—seriously—claiming the loyal N.Y. Mets' fans are deserving of a payoff. "The Cellar Series"—two out of three — scaled at a $4 top—could raise a quarter of a million dollars, to be split among the players, the Players Pension Fund and charity. "It would be a 'first' for a couple of 'lasts,' and it would be talked about forever," says Jimmy. What do you say, Losers? Would you non-support it? (How about a special award for the Most Worthless Player of the Year?)

THE MIDNIGHT EARL... Brooke Benton collapsed from work and nervous tummy at the Wildwood, N.J., Beach Club... Gary Moore's British comic, Roy Castle, arrived with his bride Fiona Dickson, on the Rotterdam, promptly bought her a hotdog. "Tomorrow," he said, "lunch at 21."

Richard Nixon went the Kennedys one better in Toots Shor's. While JFK gets no rougher than touch football, the former vice-president huddled with former Notre Dame and pro great, Johnny Lujack (and a party of 10). What's he celebrating?

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: "With this new shift dress look, you can't tell if a gal is expecting, shoplifting or just fashionable."—Comedy and Comment.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Mitch Woodbury defines "counterspy" as a department store detective.

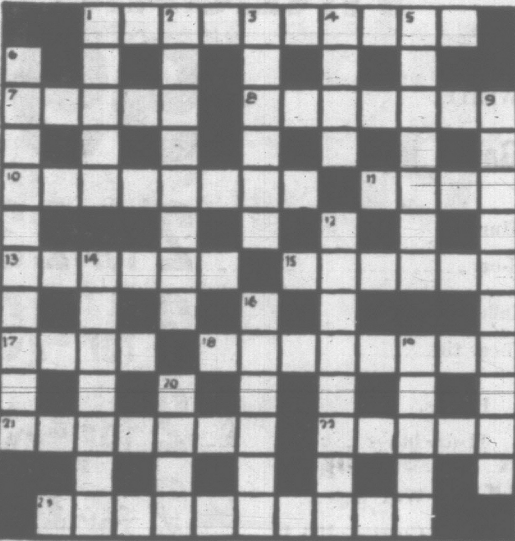

EARL'S PEARLS: A father was grilling his prospective son-in-law. "Will you be able," he asked, "to keep my daughter in the style of telephone to which she's accustomed?"

ask Andy

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND-PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 26-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 26-volume set of World Book Encyclopedia to Judy Vessey, 13, Victoria, B.C., Canada, for her question:

Why do ocean turtles lay their eggs on land?

Turtles have been turtles for some 200 million years. Their ancestors were among the first reptiles, and they developed before the lizards, the crocodiles and long before the snakes. Turtles have not made many changes through all these years. Long before the first bird built a nest, mother turtles were laying their eggs as they do today.

You may not suspect it, but the turtles are very successful animals, so successful that they have no reason to change their ways. Slowly and stolidly they have been repeating the same turtle habits since the Permian Period of earth's history, which dates back 200 million years.

The ancient turtles shared the early world with whopping salamanders and a few odd-looking reptiles. There were no other backboned animals. The salamanders were land-and-water amphibians. They had to live in water through their egg and fishy tadpole stages, just as amphibians do to this day. The salamanders and turtles had left the sea for life on the dry land, but the turtles made a more definite break with their watery cradle.

The armor-plated turtles were air breathers from birth. Their round white eggs were laid and hatched on the dry land. There was no need for these ancestor turtles to return to the sea at all. But some of them did. In the Triassic Period, about 150 million years ago, a few turtles gave up the successful life they had won for themselves on the land.

These stodgy fellows returned to the sea. In time, their stubby legs became flippers which were much more useful for swimming. But there were other changes that could not be made. To win a life on the land, turtles had developed legs. Their eggs and their youngsters needed air, and mother turtles had to go ashore to start their families.

The huge, seagoing turtles of today rival the fishes in the water. But they must surface for air to breathe, and their eggs would drown in the sea. A mother turtle still waddles ashore several times a year to lay her eggs. She chooses a sandy slope and digs a hole with her back feet, then lays 200 to 400 round white eggs. The precious nest is covered so skillfully that you would never notice it. Then the female turtle returns to the sea.

Weighs Nearly a Ton

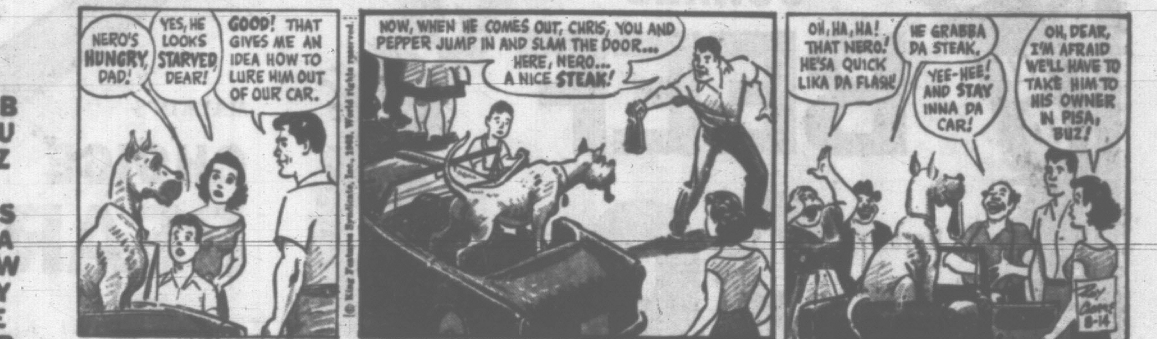

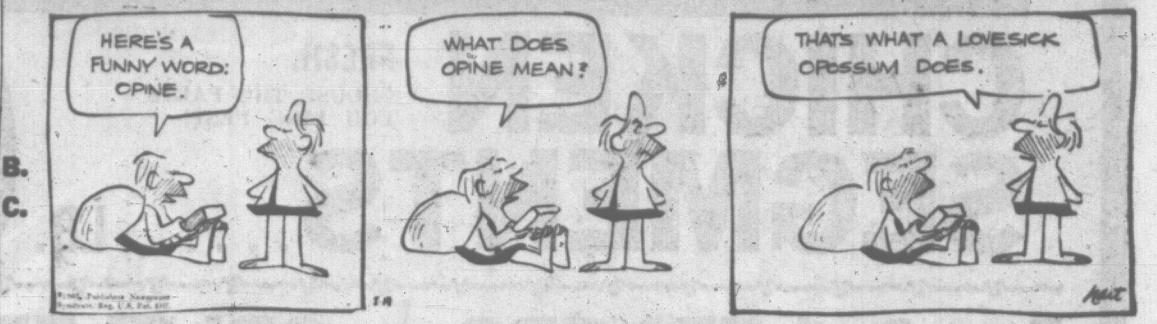

There are half a dozen species of marine turtles in our seas, and all of them are whoppers. The shell of the loggerhead turtle is big enough to make a small row boat. The green turtle, which is used to make soup, may weigh almost half a ton, and the giant leatherback turtle often weighs three quarters of a ton. Except for the times when the female comes ashore to lay her eggs, the turtles made a more definite break with their watery cradle.

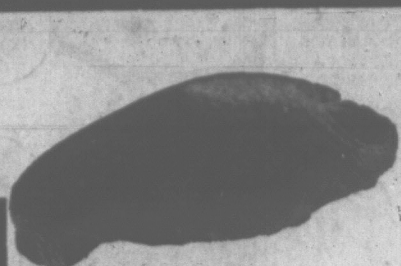

Andy sends a 15-inch World Book Globe to Mike Carpenter, age 15, of Gastonia, N.C., for his question:

How deep is the deepest spot in the ocean?

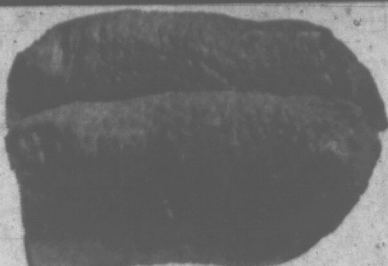

Ten years ago, this spot was said to be 35,640 feet below the waves. It was a place in the ocean deep in the Marianas Trench, 200 miles from the Pacific Island of Guam. Such trenches are steep-sided gashes in the ocean floor. Here and there, scientists have sounded six or so ocean trenches where the deepest spots are to be found.

The deepest sounding so far was taken during the IGY on Aug. 15, 1957. A depth of 36,036 feet was measured in the Marianas Trench. This 6.8-mile pit is the deepest spot we have so far discovered in the ocean.

Cognac and Champagne Soup Mix Brightens Soviet Holiday

By ALAN HARVEY
LENINGRAD (CP) — Cognac and champagne, mixed in a soup tureen, guarantee lively moments, when Olga Vinogradov and her friends hold a special party.

On May Day and any suitable occasion, she turns her two beds into a sofa and clears the floor for dancing.

Olga is a lively and likeable schoolteacher, aged about 37. Her father died of starvation in the 900-day wartime blockade of Leningrad. She is divorced and alone in the world.

She occupies one room of a small third-floor balconied apartment in the centre of the Soviet Union's most beautiful city. The other two rooms are occupied by her good friends Ivan and Galina, who have two children. Washing and toilet facilities are shared.

Soviet cities lack cocktail lounges, bars and nightclubs, compressing social life into the apartment. Apart from those special parties, the families often watch television together.

Their favorite program is a late Saturday cabaret show, Blue Light.

"It may go on until midnight, but we watch it right to the end," Olga said in response to a reporter's invitation to describe for Canadians how a typical Soviet woman lives.

A teacher all her adult life, Olga receives the 10-year rate of 135 rubles a month, about $160. The average factory wage is 80 to 100 rubles. Rent is exceptionally low, about five per cent of salary, and she saves by making her own dresses.

She has four for everyday wear, three for Sunday best and several skirts and blouses. She often eats in restaurants.

"I'm not typical Soviet woman," she laughed, using a phrase that became a byword between us. "Most women do their own cooking. I suppose I'm just lazy—but I feel that too much domesticity enslaves a woman."

She works seven hours a day, six on Saturday. The alarm clock sounds at 7:30 a.m. and every morning she does setting-up exercises for 10 minutes. She breakfasts on cheese, sausage or perhaps two soft-boiled eggs which she eats in the Russian style, holding the egg in her half-clenched hand. Egg cups are rarely used, and a Western visitor may find a vodka glass just a shade too large.

Olga spends 20 minutes making up, brushing her fluffy brown hair and applying lacquer. When setting, she uses beer.

Lessons over at 3 p.m., she eats a light restaurant meal of salad, meat, fruit or ice cream.

She says she is dieting for health reasons and obviously has no worries about slimming. After shopping or a walk she goes home to her green and yellow room with its 22 pieces of light yellow Finnish furniture, a particular pride. She has a piano, her own television and a "beautiful rug" with an intricate star pattern.

Olga's salary is paid in cash. Payment by cheque is virtually unknown, except by special arrangements between organizations such as Intourist. One Russian told me his twice-monthly stipend was "just laid on a desk in the office, and you take what is coming to you."

This seemed a strain on the morality of the new Soviet man, but he insisted that is how it is done. Similarly on buses the honor system seems to work.

The five-kopek fare is standard no matter how far you go.

Most factories have payroll lists showing deductions for such items as income tax, which is extremely low in the Soviet Union. There are savings banks in railways, hotels and on main streets, and some employees said they have standing instructions to pay their wages into a bank.

Spend As You Go
Soviets lack Scots thriftiness and the tendency is to spend as you go, mainly on food and drink since taxes, rents and similar commitments are tiny by Western standards. Interest hovers around two per cent and there is no such thing as an overdraft.

Family solidarity is strong and people often pitch part of their earnings into a communal drawer.

"Family councils" are as disinctive a feature of Russian life as the "dvorik" or courtyard behind houses where grandmothers and elderly women, known as babushka, keep a fond eye on coveting children.

Family councils may rule on such intimate matters as whether Valerian should keep company with Valentina, or whether the cosy old cottage in the Crimea—this is an actual case—should be exchanged for a city apartment. If family members are away, the decision may be made by correspondence.

With no family of her own, Olga often acts as adviser in the affairs of Ivan and Galina, in a household where doors are seldom slammed in anger.

Apart from the savings banks, or Sberkassa, there are specialized agencies such as agricultural or industrial banks.

Whatever may be thought of the conflict between the generations, it is an obvious fact that many young people, vastly better educated than their parents, earn considerably more. Thus the young often support the old.

With no such worries, Olga saves to buy shelves for her English books. Her eyes sparkle as she recalls John Galsworthy's romantic short story, The Apple Tree. She has several volumes of Dickens, Thackeray and Jack London, Russia's favorite adopted author, and she is rereading John Braine's Room at the Top, having preferred the book to the film.

She goes to concerts, theatres, the occasional ballet and to the French, Italian and English films that get past the censor.

Midnight Sunny
In June, Leningrad enjoys its famed "white nights" when daylight lingers round the clock. Some find it pleasant to sit up all night in a park reading a book, but Olga prefers to walk in the countryside round many-islanded Leningrad, savoring the scent of new-mown hay which seems to have a special fragrance at 3 a.m.

Olga believes quietly in communism. She says nothing can shake her faith. She is not shyly dogmatic.

"Essentially, I think our ideals are more fair than yours. People should think of others, not only of themselves."

To Olga and many others I met, the view of communism is different than it seems from outside. The emphasis is on what we could call idealism, though the Soviets prefer to say realism. One sample from a

10,000 Demonstrators Demand Nehru Resign

Price of Food Issue in India

By PETER JACKSON

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — About 10,000 opposition party supporters swarmed to the main gate of Parliament here today demanding the resignation of Prime Minister Nehru and protesting against the high price of food.

The demonstration came a day after all opposition parties except the Communists succeeded in introducing a motion of no confidence against the government — unprecedented in Nehru's administration.

While the anti-Nehru demonstrators were at the main gate, a group of 7,000 supporters of the ruling Congress Party were outside another gate, shouting slogans backing their leader.

Police closed both iron gates and stood guard with lathis—metal-tipped wooden staves.

DISTRIBUTE LETTER

The opposition demonstrators, who claimed to represent 60 per cent of the people of India, handed out copies of an "open letter" to Nehru, accusing his government of corruption and inefficiency and ending with the demand: "Quit, Nehru, quit."

The no confidence motion Tuesday was the first the government has faced in 16 years in office. It will be discussed in Parliament next week.

Observers said the motion, which gave no reason for the censure because the various parties supporting it have different motives for their action, has no chance of passing because of the overwhelming majority held by Nehru's Congress Party.

But they saw the motion as being a gauge of rising opposition strength and unity.

Public Denied Parley Report

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawyers have clamped a news blackout on the talks aimed at an out-of-court settlement of the dispute over status of the British Columbia Electric Company.

Douglas McK. Brown, counsel for the B.C. Power Corporation, and C. W. Brazier, counsel for the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, both said today there will be no announcement until the negotiations are completed.

They even refused to say how long they expect the talks to continue.

The talks, which started Monday, were continuing following an indefinite adjournment Tuesday of Supreme Court proceedings before Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan.

RESIGNING TODAY as Algerian national assembly speaker, Ferhat Abbas charged that since independence was gained last year the Algerian people have not once been consulted in a free way. He said the president, Ahmed Ben Bella, seeks power to turn the country's youth into unthinking robots.

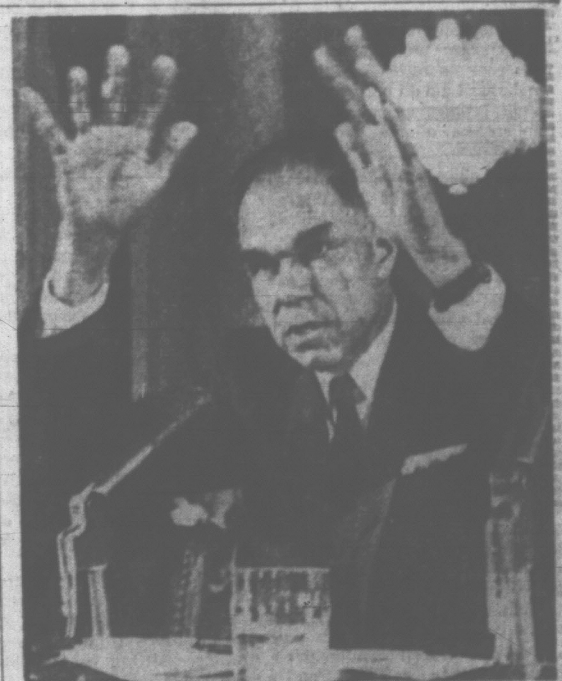

Agreement Before Cabinet

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Pearson today indicated his cabinet was nearing approval of a general agreement with the United States covering provision of nuclear weapons to Canadian forces.

As he entered a cabinet meeting Mr. Pearson told newsmen detailed, clause-by-clause study of the draft agreement was to be proceeded with. If it was not completed today, he said, it would be proceeded with Thursday. In the event any changes were felt to be necessary, Mr. Pearson added, discussions would be held with U.S. authorities.

Mr. Pearson said he expected the cabinet would give approval in principle to the agreement, take up consideration of specific details, and then deal with any "verbal changes" which would require Canada to consult with the U.S. But, he added, he didn't anticipate any departure from the basic principles of the agreement.

'Weapons Tests Still Effective'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, testified today that underground testing will permit a "wide range" of nuclear weapons development, including warheads for anti-missile defence. As the third witness at Senate hearings, Seaborg strongly backed earlier testimony from State Secretary Dean Rusk and Defence Secretary Robert McNamara that ratification of the limited nuclear test-ban treaty would be "in the best interests of the United States."

Jobless Ranks Thinning

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Canada fell to 293,000 in mid-July, a drop of 11,000 from the June figure and 15,000 under the total for July, 1962, the federal labor department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The joint press release noted that the heavy summer influx of students into the labor force, which was evident in June, continued in July.

The unemployment rate for July was 4.2 per cent of the labor force compared with 4.5 per cent a year earlier and 5.2 per cent two years ago. In June, the rate was 4.4 per cent. The jobless rate is the number of unemployed, as a percentage of the labor force.

Employment rose between June and July by an estimated 207,000 to 6,742,000, an "above-average" increase for this time of year, the report said.

At the same time, there was a large increase of 196,000 in the total manpower count to 7,035,000. Against these increases, unemployment showed its slight decline.

The DBS-labor department release said the labor force expansion between June and July was characterized by "a very large influx of students." During the month, an estimated 199,000 teenagers between 14 and 19 years of age entered the labor force and an equally large number got jobs.

The total entry of teenagers into the labor force during the two months from May to July amounted to 312,000. This compares with 268,000 during the corresponding period last year and 214,000 in 1961.

Of the 293,000 jobless workers in July, 201,000 had been unemployed for three months or less. An estimated 33,000 had been seeking work from four to six months and 59,000 for seven months or more.

The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate was estimated at 4.2 per cent, unchanged from June but down slightly from the 4.4 per cent rate of July, 1962. The report includes a cautionary note about the reliability of the seasonally adjusted rate because of guesswork involved in its calculation.

Unemployment rates in the Atlantic, Quebec and British Columbia regions were higher than the national 4.2 per cent average, while in Ontario and the Prairies the rates were lower. Jobless rate for July in B.C. was 5.5 per cent, compared with 5.1 per cent a year ago.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial secretary of the New Democratic Party said today that a member of Parliament and a member of the British Columbia legislature have been reprimanded for "allowing themselves to be used by Communist or Communist-front organizations."

PERFECT EXAMPLE of Scotland Yard detective is seen in photo of Detective Superintendent Gerald McArthur as he views yard of farm where mail train robbers established hideout. British police swooped down on farm, located near scene of crime, on Tuesday only to find gang had fled. (AP Wirephoto)

Hideout Gives Several Clues In Train Case

LONDON (AP) — British police investigating the great mail train robbery followed up a new avenue of leads today uncovered by the discovery of a lonely farm that was the gang's hideout.

Scotland Yard had:

1. The name and address of a man to whom the farm was sold less than a month ago.
2. A description of a charming, expensively dressed man who came to collect the keys.
3. Descriptions of a ginger-headed stranger and a brunette woman seen in the district by suspicious country folk.

Although the police appeared to be making progress, there was still no trace of the loot of more than £2,500,000 ($7,500,000) snatched from the Glasgow-London night mail train last Thursday.

An unconfirmed report said an underworld source had furnished the names of 10 criminals supposedly to have taken part in the raid.

LOOT FIGURE DISPUTED BY 'CHARLIE'

LONDON (Reuters) — A newspaper today printed a letter, seemingly from a member of the gang which staged Britain's £2,500,000 ($7,500,000) train robbery, disputing the official figure of losses given in the theft.

"We really must protest at the dishonesty of high officials," the letter says. "Somebody is claiming over £2,600,000 ($7,800,000) from insurance companies."

"For your information and for anybody also interested, the total gained from this exercise was exactly £2,095,325 ($6,285,975) and a sprained ankle."

The letter, signed Charlie was mailed in the Lambeth area near central London Tuesday.

1,200 Cubans Seek to Beat U.S. Blockade

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters) — A mystery ship which plans to pick up 1,200 Cuban refugees in the next two days for attempted transport to the United States has turned back to a Jamaican port, a lawyer for the sponsor of the project said today.

Contrary to earlier reports, the lawyer said, there are no Cubans on the ship at present.

The sailing, ostensibly organized to break what was called an American ban on entry of Cuban refugees was organized by British-born Harry Derber in defiance of U.S. state department warnings.

But Derber's lawyer, John Nageley, said the ship returned because of "certain communications I received."

POSITION SECRET

He said he could not disclose the ship's whereabouts but added that it will pick up 1,200 Cubans in the next two days. The Cubans presumably are still in Cuba.

If Derber goes ahead with his plans to get the Cubans into the U.S., it will follow an unsuccessful attempt last month to fly refugees out of Cuba via Britain's Grand Cayman Island, 200 miles northwest of Jamaica.

Since then, the U.S. has alleged agents were leaving Cuba for other Latin American countries on flights that landed at Grand Cayman and has requested Britain to deny landing rights to flights carrying "potential subversive agents."

FOUNDERS OF COMMUNISM, PSYCHIATRY PLAYED ROLES

'Christians Can Claim No Monopoly on God'

By CARL MOLLINS

TORONTO (CP) — A leading British churchman told the Anglican World Congress today the atheistic founder of communism and the unbelieving father of psychoanalysis have strong claims to godliness.

Canon Max Warren, general secretary of the Church Missionary Society in England, said Christians can claim no monopoly on God because his righteousness works through other faiths and even atheistic more sympathetic understanding among Anglicans for other ideologies and science.

He suggested to 1,000 Anglican churchmen at the first working session of their 11-day meeting that Christian concern for social righteousness "owes not a little, under God, to the stimulus of Karl Marx."

MARX provided stimulus

Christians conscious of the contribution of psychoanalysis to the healing of spirits "will humbly thank God for his grace at work in Sigmund Freud, no less at work because Freud did not acknowledge him."

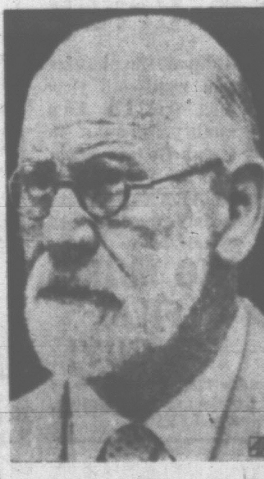

Canon Warren, launching discussion on how the church can best confront rival faiths and ideas, suggested that since religion is a quest for understanding of life then a medium that increases understanding serves religion. He described such contributions as "Godly irreligion."

MAY DENY REALITY

"The great role of science is to make men more religious because it is forever increasing our knowledge of the universe," Canon Warren warned there is danger in the very theme of the current congress — the church's mission on the "frontiers" of religion, politics and culture—because it tends to divide life into religious and secular compartments when such divisions should not exist if the church is to survive.

An apparent failure to believe in Christianity often is just "a refusal to accept the distortions of our own believing," he said. A major source of such distortions is the failure of the church to speak to modern man in his own language.

Referring to the fact that religious jargon sometimes creates "a God that is dead," Canon Warren commended as "a deeply sincere and profoundly courageous" attempt to find a fresh language a controversial book entitled Honest to God by Bishop John Robinson of Woolwich, England. (Dr. Robinson, who suggests there is Canadians Among Train Robbers?

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan police believe three Toronto criminals—two of them suspected of a robbery near here in 1960—may have taken part in Britain's $7,500,000 mail train robbery last week. Police, working on this assumption and the knowledge that the trio have been in England for some months, have sent dossiers to Scotland Yard.

Sugar Price Slashed In East

MONTREAL (CP) — Three major Montreal sugar refineries today announced a 40-cent reduction in the price of sugar, bringing it to $11.85 a 100-pound bag. This is the lowest the price has been since last March 29. It was $9.10 last Jan. 1.

Ex-Fighter Accused of Extortion

TORONTO (CP) — Police arrested James J. Parker, 34, former Canadian heavyweight boxing champion, today on a charge of attempting to extort $40,000 from a Toronto resident by threats.

Revenues Set Record

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pacific Great Eastern Railway today reported total revenue in 1962 of $14,771,553, highest in the provincially-owned railway's history.

But it still lost money. J. S. Broadbent, PGE vice-president and general manager, said in the road's annual report that the revenue is up $512,443 or 3.6 per cent from the 1961 figure.

Operating profit, before interest charges and depreciation, was $6,025,053, an increase of $781,860 from 1961. However, inclusion of interest and depreciation charges produced a loss in the year of $1,433,210, down from $1,810,101 in 1961.

MOB DEMANDS
NEHRU QUIT

By PETER JACKSON

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — About 10,000 opposition party supporters swarmed to the main gate of Parliament here today demanding the resignation of Prime Minister Nehru and protesting against the high price of food.

The demonstration came a day after all opposition parties except the Communists succeeded in introducing a motion of no confidence against the government — unprecedented in Nehru's administration.

While the anti-Nehru demonstrators were at the main gate, a group of 7,000 supporters of the ruling Congress Party were outside another gate, shouting slogans backing their leader.

Police closed both iron gates and stood guard with lathis—metal-tipped wooden staves.

DISTRIBUTE LETTER

The opposition demonstrators, who claimed to represent 60 per cent of the people of India, handed out copies of an "open letter" to Nehru, accusing his government of corruption and inefficiency and ending with the demand: "Quit, Nehru, quit."

The no confidence motion Tuesday was the first the government has faced in 16 years in office. It will be discussed in Parliament next week.

Observers said the motion which gave no reason for the censure because the various parties supporting it have different motives for their action, has no chance of passing because of the overwhelming majority held by Nehru's Congress Party.

But they saw the motion as being a gauge of rising opposition strength and unity.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, testified today that underground testing will permit a "wide range" of nuclear weapons development, including warheads for anti-missile defense.

As the third witness at Senate hearings, Seaborg strongly backed earlier testimony from State Secretary Dean Rusk and

Hideout Gives
Several Clues
In Train Case

LONDON (AP)—British police investigating the great mail train robbery followed up a new avenue of leads today uncovered by the discovery of a lonely farm that was the gang's hideout.

Scotland Yard had:

1. The name and address of a man to whom the farm was sold less than a month ago.
2. A description of a charming, expensively dressed man who came to collect the keys.
3. Descriptions of a ginger-headed stranger and a brunette woman seen in the district by suspicious country folk.

Although the police appeared to be making progress, there was still no trace of the loot of more than $2,500,000 ($7,500,000) snatched from the Glasgow-London night mail train last Thursday.

An unconfirmed report said an underworld source had furnished the names of 10 criminals supposedly to have taken part in the raid.

FOUNDERS OF COMMUNISM, PSYCHIATRY PLAYED ROLES

'Christians Can Claim No Monopoly on God'

By CARL MOLLINS

TORONTO (CP) — A leading British churchman told the Anglican World Congress today the atheistic founder of communism and the unbelieving father of psychoanalysis have strong claims to godliness.

Canon Max Warren, general secretary of the Church Missionary Society in England, said Christians can claim no monopoly on God because his righteousness works through other faiths and even atheistic more sympathetic understanding among Anglicans for other ideologies and science.

He suggested to 1,000 Anglican churchmen at the first working session of their 11-day meeting that Christian concern for social righteousness "owes not a little, under God, to the stimulus of Karl Marx."

Christians conscious of the contribution of psychoanalysis to the healing of spirits "will humbly thank God for his grace at work in Sigmund Freud, no less at work because Freud did not acknowledge him."

Canon Warren, launching discussion on how the church can best confront rival faiths and ideas, suggested that since religion is a quest for understanding of life then a medium that increases understanding serves religion. He described such contributions as "Godly irreligion."

"The great role of science is to make men more religious because it is forever increasing our knowledge of the universe." The trouble with religion, he added, is that it is in danger of denying reality by building on mystery.

"Science has no brief to tell religion the meaning of life and love. Religion, for its part, has no right to tell science what is knowledge."

"But science and religion together may some day have something very important to say to technology—a word as to how things are done and what should not be done."

Canon Warren warned there is danger in the very theme of the current congress — the church's mission on the "frontiers" of religion, politics and culture—because it tends to divide life into religious and secular compartments when such divisions should not exist if the church is to survive.

An apparent failure to believe in Christianity often is just "a refusal to accept the distortions of our own believing," he said.

A major source of such distortions is the failure of the church to speak to modern man in his own language.

Referring to the fact that religious jargon sometimes creates "a God that is dead," Canon Warren commended as a "deeply sincere and profoundly courageous" attempt to find a fresh language a controversial book entitled Honest to God by Bishop John Robinson of Woolwich, England. (Dr. Robinson, who suggests there is

Agreement Before Cabinet

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Pearson today indicated his cabinet was nearing approval of a general agreement with the United States covering provision of nuclear weapons to Canadian forces.

As he entered a cabinet meeting Mr. Pearson told newsmen detailed, clause-by-clause study of the draft agreement was to be proceeded with.

If it was not completed today, he said, it would be proceeded with Thursday. In the event any changes were felt to be necessary, Mr. Pearson added, discussions would be held with U.S. authorities.

Mr. Pearson said he expected the cabinet would give approval in principle to the agreement, take up consideration of specific details, and then deal with any "verbal changes" which would require Canada to consult with the U.S. But, he added, he didn't anticipate any departure from the basic principles of the agreement.

Public Denied Only Scotland Makes Scotch!

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lawyers have clamped a news blackout on the talks aimed at an out-of-court settlement of the dispute over status of the British Columbia Electric Corporation.

Douglas McK. Brown, counsel for the B.C. Power Corporation, and C. C. W. Brazier, counsel for the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority, both said today there will be no announcement until the negotiations are completed.

They even refused to say how long they expect the talks to continue.

The talks, which started Monday, were continuing following an indefinite adjournment Tuesday of Supreme Court proceedings before Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan.

OTHERS TRY, NONE SUCCEED

By ROD CURRIE
EDINBURGH (CP)—There is no mechanical reason why proper Scotch whisky cannot be produced outside Scotland—but it can't, say the Scots.

The Japanese try, the Indians try, the Spanish and many other nations try, with varying degrees of success. But while there is no deep, jealously-guarded secret surrounding the process, the Scots claim nothing can match Scotland's best.

Distillers and blenders, to a man, agree that the ingredients that make the difference are Scotland's pure water and foul weather.

The water goes into the distillery as pure as when it came bubbling down the mountain-side, no chemicals added.

The cool, damp climatic conditions are ideal for the maturing process and keep evaporation to a minimum. Under law all Scotch must be aged at least three years but, in fact, no Scotch worthy of the name is aged less than six.

And Scottish distillers say whisky should not be aged beyond 15 years because it then starts to take on the flavor of the wooden cask.

Most casks previously were used for sherry and the whisky, clear as water when it leaves the distillery, picks up its color during storage.

No two whiskies are exactly alike, because of the different blending and the character of the local water, air and climate, the stillman's technique and the types of cask used.

Blending is the art of combining various full-bodied Highland malts with the lighter Lowland malt and grain products to achieve a distinctive product consistent in color, flavor and bouquet from year to year.

Most popular brands are a combination of 25 or more whiskies. The blenders live in dread of turning out a batch even slightly different from the previous batch of the same brand. Sometimes tasteless caramel is used to add color.

BARLEY WON'T ALTER
The barley gets none of the credit. "There is no such thing as a vintage year in barley," says an expert distiller. "The better the quality the more whisky we get per bushel but it has no influence on the quality or flavor."

Whisky's slow rise to fame began in 1725 when the government imposed a sixpence-a-bushel tax on the malt used in brewing ale. As a result of riots the tax was cut in half but ale consumption still declined, eventually making way for whisky.

Scotch was practically unknown outside the Highlands, however, until about 1750 and it was not until almost 100 years later, when insects ravaged the French vineyards, that it took over pride of place from brandy in upper- and middle-class circles in England.

In 1962 the export of Scotch amounted to 27,499,000 proof gallons valued at £75,680,373—almost four times that of the annual total before the Second World War.

Distillers claim the home market, although expanding, is inhibited by the high excise duty—now £1 7s on a bottle retailing for £2 1s 9d.

Police said a total of between $40,000 and $45,000 may be involved.

The charge on which the preliminary hearing is to be held is one of attempted fraud. Caplan has already been charged with defrauding Kenneth John Howe of Victoria of $1,959.

Defence counsel Allan Bigelow said Tuesday his client would elect trial by judge without jury on this charge at the conclusion of the preliminary hearing on the attempted fraud charge.

Caplan is free on $10,000 bail.

Man Drowned In Car Accident

KITIMAT (CP)—One man is missing, presumed drowned, and three other persons are in hospital after their car plunged from a road into the Kitimat River 10 miles east of here. Police said the accident occurred sometime overnight Tuesday. They were searching the river for the body of Lyle Andrew Wilson, 23. In hospital is Peter Vermette, his wife Katherine and their son Perry, three months old.

Const. Harrison testified Menard drove on Rose Street at 40 m.p.h. and crossed to the wrong side of the road when he turned east on Hillside while a pedestrian was stepping off the sidewalk.

The constable said he saw Menard drive through a stop sign and continue for half a block on the wrong side of Kings Road.

'Three-Fin' Sighting At Lake

SUMMERLAND, B.C. (CP)—For several nights, the dark silence over Okanagan Lake had been ripped by soft splashing sounds.

But it wasn't until Sunday that the strange object appeared in daylight—a line of three fins distributed over about 15 feet.

Residents hesitate to identify the phenomenon as Ogopogo, the legendary landlocked sea serpent of Okanagan Lake.

Bill Laidlaw of Parkdale, B.C., one of the "three-fin" sighters here, isn't going out on a limb.

"It looked like three big fins or something," he said.

"To tell the truth it did look something like what people say this Ogopogo creature looks like. I didn't see any head though."

Mr. Laidlaw says he doesn't believe in Ogopogo anyway.

Especially not at the height of the tourist season.
